"Before the king Joe's messenger appears, And thus in whispers greets his trembling ears: 'Fear not, oh father! no ill news I bear: From Joe I come, Joe makes thee still his care.'"

Those two mysterious unknown Cabinet members may be dark horses to the reporters, but they'll be nightmares to the "Failed to Get In" Club.

That inaugural exhibit, "Washington—past, present and future," sounds as though it might have been arranged by Mrs. Blalock.

The passage by the House of the Jones bill, under which a high school boy could be sent to jail for five years for buying a pint of gin presents to President Coolidge somewhat the same problem which confronted Woodrow Wilson when he took his vigorous pen in hand and vetoed the Volstead Act.

Washington woman sees a manicurist for $25.00 for holding her husband's hand.

It is calculated by the statisticians that the Jones bill, if it becomes a law, will make 1,756,892 more applicants for jobs as prohibition enforcement agents.

R. B. Cresser points with pride to the Texas Republican machine and gets sore when Senator Brookhart tries to throw a monkey wrench in it.

The striking Lynn shoe workers who demand higher wages would do well to wait until the Ways and Means committee reaches the leather schedule.

In the Army, when an aviator crashes, his comrades instantly take to the air, and in this spirit Lindy and Anne hop off on another flight. "Write on your doors the saying wise and old, 'Be bold! be bold! and everywhere—Be bold! Be not too bold! Yet better the excess Than the defects better the more than less.'"

F. Scott McBride, from a seat in the gallery, presides over the so-called deliberations of the House of Representatives.

The Michigan House repeals the provision in its barbarous law under which the mother of six children and a mere boy have been sent to prison for life as fourth offenders for violating the liquor law. After the hysteria comes the reaction.

The blush of a New York girl registers on the thermometer five one-hundredths of one degree of heat, Fahrenheit, and we saw a Washington girl parading down F street yesterday who could have reduced this by four one-hundredths.

Any street car customer could tell these scientists that if they want to register the heat of a blush they should pick out a male sitting opposite to a row of feminine knees.

The allocation of $500,000,000 of German reparations bonds to the United States is described as "the limit," and we'll say it is.

King George fills the vacancies in the peerage in accordance with the best traditions of Mr. W. S. Gilbert, "Small titles and orders For Mayors and Recorders, I get—and they're highly delighted. M. P.'s baronetted, Sham Colonels gaudied, And second-rate Aldermen knighted."

Happy the head of a State who can pay off his political obligations with a bit of ribbon instead of a slice of pie.

The Senate gets some figures on the cost of American politics that by no stretch of the imagination could be listed under the heading of Coolidgeconomy.

A $50,000,000 coal merger to reduce costs is a good deal better March news than the usual threat of a strike.

WEATHER FORECAST Prof. Beaswax P. McGinnis, general superintendent of the Year Without a Summer, when interviewed last night said: "There will be considerable weather on the morning of March 4, followed by more in the afternoon."

Analysis of the cost of the last campaign discloses that it's up to Mr. Hoover to show whether or not the Republican politicians got their money's worth.

It is understood that when George Bernard Shaw learned that King George hadn't decorated him he dismissed both of his doctors and the homeliest nurse.

HOUSE, 283-90, VOTES DRASTIC DRY PENALTIES

$10,000 Fine and Five-Year Term Now Up to President.

M'BRIDE OBSERVES DEBATE INTENTLY

Michener Holds Measure Is Worded Clumsily and Sees Court Confusion.

By ALBERT W. FOX. By a vote of 283 to 90 the House yesterday passed the Jones prohibition bill providing for a five-year prison sentence and a $10,000 fine for violators of the Volstead act. Only the President's signature is now required to make the bill become law.

Steam-roller methods easily coped with any and all attempts to amend or even seriously discuss the merits of the bill, although there was one moment when it seemed as if a distinction might be made through an amendment between hardened bootleggers' sentences and punishment decreed for first offenders.

There was also a flare in the debate which involved an unnamed antisaloon potentate in the gallery and Representative O'Connor, of New York, was responsible for it. F. Scott McBride, general counsel of the Antisaloon League, was an attentive and watchful spectator in the gallery.

Perils Seen in Changes. Opponents of the bill scored throughout in the debate, but the dry scored when it came to counting the votes. Dry leaders with few exceptions abandoned all efforts to defend the bill.

Representative Michener (Republican), Michigan, and member of the judiciary committee, said the bill was ridiculous, so far as language was concerned; that the Senate had phrased it so clumsily that there could be no uniformity in court decisions. For these reasons he had hesitated about consenting to bring the bill out, he added.

But the dry broke down all opposition by the simple statement, as announced by Representative Christopher (Republican), South Dakota, that any change whatever meant the death of the legislation.

There was a break in the dry ranks when an amendment by Representative Tucker (Democrat), Virginia, prevailed on the initial count of the vote by 180 to 109. This amendment provided for a penalty of one year in prison and a $3,000 fine for first offenders instead of the $10,000 fine and five-year jail sentence as contained in the bill.

Amendment Is Best. A vote by tellers was demanded and there was a hurried scurrying to round up absent drys. The vote brought the defeat of the Tucker amendment, 149 to 126.

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, enlivened the proceedings shortly after this vote by pointing to the unnamed Antisaloon League potentate in the gallery and characterizing him as the "black-browed super-President of the United States." Obedience to his orders and not obedience to the Constitution controlled the situation, O'Connor charged.

There were indignant shouts of protest when O'Connor pointed to the gallery and spoke disparagingly of the Antisaloon League. O'Connor had submitted an amendment to substitute capital punishment for the provisions of the Jones bill, which provide for the five-year jail sentence and the $10,000 fine. A point of order was made against this amendment, but Representative Beeg, of Ohio, in the chair, ruled that the amendment was germane to the bill. O'Connor's tactics soon flattened this and other attempts to amend or discuss the bill.

Blonds Outblush Brunette Sisters, Science Discloses

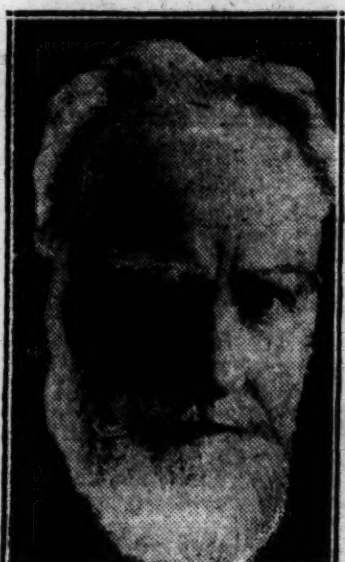

Thermopile Test Conducted by Dr. E. E. Free at Dinner in New York; Young Woman Subject Just Barely Registers.

New York, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—The temperatures of blushing on a girl's cheek were measured tonight in the presence of the guests at the science dinner of the American Institute.

Only mild blushes were available on the cheeks of the young woman who sat before the dinner with a thermopile 2 feet from her face registering her passing emotions. Her blushes recorded about five one-hundredths of a degree Fahrenheit, an order of bluish scarcely sufficient to induce much color. The heat measured in radiation caused by the blood rushing into the cheeks during emotion.

Dr. E. E. Free, who conducted the demonstration, explained that numerous experiments have put the temperatures of blushing in well-defined classes. The range seems to be almost as wide as the play of human emotion, some readings showing 100 times as much actual rise in temperature as others.

King Omits Notables In Granting Peerages

Shaw, Kipling, Doctors, Chamberlain Not on Honor List.

London, Feb. 28 (U.P.).—The king's New Year's honor list, which was delayed until tonight because of his majesty's serious illness, is in some respects more remarkable for what it omitted than for what it contained. Three elevations to the peerage were revealed, but a number of anticipated honors were omitted.

None of the twelve physicians who attended the king at some stage of his illness was mentioned in the list, nor were any of his nurses. It was believed in some quarters, however, that the inclusion of some of these "miracle men" who saved his majesty's life was not wholly expected until next year.

Rudyard Kipling (right) and George Bernard Shaw, who were omitted from king's new year's honor list just announced.

The list also fails to contain the names of George Bernard Shaw, dramatist, or John Galsworthy, novelist, both of whom previously had been mentioned as likely recipients of honors.

A section of the press also had expected an order of merit for Rudyard Kipling; and possibly a peerage for Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary. All of these failed to materialize.

The new peers are: Sir Jesse Boot, wealthy retail druggist, for his services in promoting education.

Urban Hutcheson Rogers Broughton, in consideration of the political and philanthropic services of his father, the late Urban Halon Broughton, whose

HOOVER SUSPENDS JOB APPORTIONING

Diplomatic and Little Cabinet Choices to Wait for New Conferences.

TWO SURPRISES COMING

By CARLISLE BARGERON. With his Cabinet and inaugural address completed President-elect Hoover has brought his affairs to the point where he can take it comparatively easy until he ascends to the Presidency Monday.

Diplomatic appointments and the little cabinet, so-called, are to be left until he has had time to confer, in the first instance, with Henry L. Stimson, his new Secretary of State, and in the second with the departmental heads that will compose his official family.

According to custom, many of the under and assistant secretaries will submit their resignations, a large number already having done so, but no action will be taken on them until Mr. Hoover has conferred with the department heads.

Ordinarily these department heads will have free rein to name their assistants, so the reports that this and that man would be named assistant secretary of something are largely groundless. If Mr. Hoover has a particular man that he wants to place here and there his recommendation to the Cabinet head of that department would, of course, be carried out, but under Mr. Hoover's scheme of things the departmental heads will be held responsible for their organizations and largely permitted to name their subordinates.

This means, of course, that the reports that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aviation are at least premature. It may be that the colonel's hold on the public might eventually bring something like that about, but to expect to make a point of order.

"I do not believe it is subject to a point of order," said Brookhart. Senator Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, asked if there was anything in the Brookhart amendment which would reduce the salaries of the higher-paid employees, and was told that there was not.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, agreed with Brookhart that the amendment was not subject to a

WAGE RAISE CLAUSE ADOPTED BY SENATE

Provision, Asking Cut in Big Salaries, Dropped From Deficiency Bill.

DOUBLES WELCH RATES

The Brookhart amendment to the urgency deficiency bill, which provides additional pay raises for Federal employees who were slighted under the Welch act, was adopted by the Senate yesterday, and the indications are that it will remain in the bill.

The Senate removed from the bill a provision which would reduce the salaries of the higher-paid employees who got more than they were supposed to get under the Welch act. It appears likely that this provision will stay out.

When the bill goes to conference it is probable that a provision will be written into it to give the Personal Classification Board sole authority to allocate employees to the various grades.

The Senate approved the Brookhart pay-raise amendment without a roll call, and after less than five minutes of debate.

The amendment adds an extra salary step-up to the various grades and will distribute close to $3,000,000 in salary raises among Federal employees. To those employees who got only a $60 raise under the Welch act, it will give a $120 raise, and to those who got only a $100 raise it will give $200.

Senator Warren (Republican) of Wyoming, chairman of the Senate appropriations committee, made a point of order against the amendment, declaring it would put legislation into an appropriation bill.

"The senator from Iowa," Warren said, "knows as well as I do that this is out of order. It is introducing new legislation in an appropriation bill, which is contrary to the rules of the Senate. Therefore, being in charge of this bill, there is nothing for me to do except to make a point of order."

"I do not believe it is subject to a point of order," said Brookhart. Senator Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, asked if there was anything in the Brookhart amendment which would reduce the salaries of the higher-paid employees, and was told that there was not.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, agreed with Brookhart that the amendment was not subject to a

SPECIAL CARS BRING CROWDS FOR INAUGURAL

Vanguard of Out-of-Town Visitors Expected in Force Today.

EXHIBIT TELLS STORY OF NATION'S CAPITAL

Weather Man's Forecast Is Deferred to Tonight, but Committee Optimistic.

As the first delegations of inaugural visitors are making their appearance on the streets of Washington and while the hotels are making strenuous efforts to stretch their capacity to accommodate guests making demands for reservations, the inaugural period is officially scheduled to open today, with the first of the committee's entertainment features ready for inspection by the public.

This feature, an exhibit of "Washington, Past, Present and Future," is on display in the Washington Building, Fifteenth street and New York avenue, and promises to be a revelation, not only to visitors, but to residents of the Capital who have not made a comprehensive study of the proposed improvements in the architectural design of the city of the future.

Committee Expects Sunshine. Members of the inaugural committee, gazing out of the windows of their headquarters in the Willard Hotel yesterday, seemed relieved to find rain during the morning, followed by overcast skies and slightly colder weather later in the day. This, they felt, augured well for a bright, sunshiny day on Monday, their theory being that only so much rain will fall in a certain period and if it fell this week, there ought to be sunshine when President-elect Hoover is inaugurated into office.

At the United States Weather Bureau Charles L. Mitchell, official forecaster, "played safe." He declined to make any prediction on the nature of the weather for Monday, but announced that a prediction might be forthcoming tonight at about 9:30 o'clock. Should unsettled conditions prevail, the official forecast will be deferred until tomorrow morning.

The bureau issued a set of statistics on weather conditions for previous inaugurations and pointed with pride to an 800 "batting average" on predictions of March 4 weather over a ten-year period.

Extra Cars on Trains Today. A few extra cars added to regular trains are expected to bring the first sizeable delegations of visitors into the city today, while the number will be augmented tomorrow by numerous parties from nearby States. The delegations from distant points are due to arrive in the Union Station Sunday and early Monday morning.

Taxicab companies have enlarged their fleets to handle expected "rush" business, while street car and bus lines are preparing for heavy traffic, due to the police request that Capital motorists leave their automobiles at home Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

One fear felt by the inaugural committee is that the aerial demonstrations planned as part of the parade and for the entertainment of visitors before and after the inaugural ceremony may have to be canceled.

Rains Affect Flying Facilities. Recent rains and snow have made a bog of Bolling Field, where flying operations have been suspended, and unless some drying weather is delivered by the District meteorologists quickly visitors may have to do their air sight-seeing by watching the planes from the ground.

An added attraction for the program at the Rialto Theater Sunday night has been announced by the entertainment committee. Miss Sylvia Lent, violinist of national renown and daughter of the late Ernest Lent, Washington musician, will play. Miss Hazel Arth, Capital girl, who won the Atwater Kent national audition contest over 60,000 other singers, is featured on that program.

One of the prize events of the program for out-of-town guests will be the exhibition drill by the Third Cavalry and Sixteenth Field Artillery in the Riding Hall, Fort Myer, Va., at 3:20 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Because of the limited seating capacity

BURLINGAME'S STORY MAY BE HEARD FROM HIS OWN LIPS TODAY

Mrs. A. T. Hert Breaks Wrist in Street Fall

Vice Chairman of G. O. P. National Committee Taken to Hospital.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice chairman of the Republican national committee, was confined to Emergency Hospital last night with a fractured right wrist, suffered when she slipped and fell while crossing Seventeenth street as she was leaving the Barr Building late yesterday afternoon.

Attempting to dodge traffic while crossing the street, Mrs. Hert lost her balance and fell. Passersby came to her assistance and she was removed to her home, 1785 Massachusetts avenue northwest. There Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, called Dr. John H. Lyons, who placed Mrs. Hert's arm in a sling and sent her to the hospital.

At the hospital the wrist was put in a cast after X-ray pictures had been taken, revealing a fracture of the joint. It was expected that Mrs. Hert would be able to return to her home this morning.

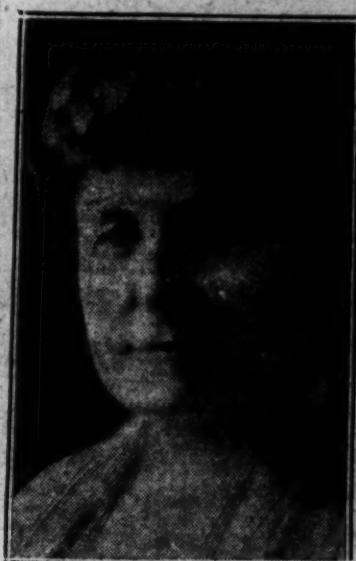

Mrs. Hert had only recently returned from Florida after her work with the Republican committee. She had planned to take part in a number of inaugural activities which she will be obliged to forego because of her injury. Shortly after the election of Herbert Hoover as the next President, Mrs. Hert, who is from Louisville, Ky., was prominently mentioned as a Cabinet possibility, but she put an end to these rumors by a personal denial.

LINDBERGH IS ALOFT AGAIN WITH FIANCEE

Aviator and Miss Morrow Make 3 Flights in Mexico Day After Accident.

HIS SHOULDER IN BANDAGE

Mexico City, Feb. 28 (U.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his fiancée, Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, showed the world today their faith in aviation by returning to the scene of their crash yesterday and making three short flights in a borrowed military plane.

With only the bandages on Lindbergh's shoulder—which was dislocated in yesterday's mishap—revealing that they had narrowly escaped with their lives less than 24 hours before, the couple drove to the Valbuena flying field this morning and borrowed an open plane.

Miss Morrow was slightly nervous when they entered the plane, but 30 minutes later she smiled confidently as Lindbergh assisted her from the craft. The three short flights were made without actually halting the plane on the field and the craft was never out of sight of spectators near the hangars.

Lindbergh will accompany Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and his family on their usual week-end trip to the Ambassador's beautiful country home at Cuernavaca tomorrow, it was understood. The delay in Lindbergh's departure as a result of the crash and the trip to Cuernavaca to rest over the week-end, has renewed rumors that the couple will be married in Mexico shortly, probably on the tier's premises visit. There was no official confirmation, however.

Lindbergh and Miss Morrow were in fine spirits when they appeared on the flying field this morning to start their short air trips in the borrowed plane. Lindbergh, who drove their automobile to the field, was wearing a gray suit and his blonde hair was brushed back by the breeze.

Miss Morrow wore a blue skirt and red sport coat. Both smiled as they

HOUSE ACTS TO SAVE 2 DEFICIENCY BILLS

Conferees Given Wide Powers as Senator Glass Scores Lower Chamber Stand.

REVOLT HELD JUSTIFIED

(Associated Press.) An eleventh-hour move to rescue the two deficiency appropriation bills from the legislative waste heap was initiated by the House last night in giving wide powers to a conference committee to negotiate with the Senate.

The two houses for days have been at odds over the advisability of providing an increase of $24,000,000 for prohibition enforcement, but despite this difference administration leaders are anxious for enactment of one or the other measures because of the many other items they contain.

Simultaneous with the House action, Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, issued a statement declaring the history of the two bills in his opinion disclosed that the Senate had reached the point where it would not any longer permit "two or three members of the House appropriations committee" to control the legislative activities of the Senate.

The senator said the "real question" involved in the dispute between the two houses was not the "nature of the amendments but the action of the two houses conferees in abruptly breaking off conference relations with the Senate and refusing to again confer on provisions of the deficiency appropriation bill because the Senate conferees would not promptly yield to them."

The breach between the House and Senate resulted over the Senate incorporating the $24,000,000 item in the first deficiency bill. House leaders refused to concur and sent the measure to conference. The conference committee of which Senator Glass is a member, failed to reach an agreement.

In an attempt to kill the $24,000,000 item, the House leaders in reporting a

Wife Asks Police to Seek Husband, Missing 24 Years

Her Patience Exhausted, Washington Woman Tells of Mate's Departure in 1905 With $1,400 to Buy a Lot; "He Likes the Women," She Says.

For 24 years Mrs. Annie Schubert, of 400 Twelfth street southwest, has been waiting for her husband to return. Yesterday she asked police to find him.

Last night Mrs. Schubert, now 61 years old, invited a reporter for The Washington Post, who called on her at her home, a small one-room rear apartment which she utilizes as a bedroom, parlor, dining room, kitchen and bath to "sit down and make yourself comfortable." The reporter did, and then Mrs. Schubert told of a day, late in 1905, when her husband, Charles Otto Schubert, kissed her good-by as he left their home in Doylestown, Pa., and told her not to wait up for him as he was going to the nearby town of Polesom to buy a building lot.

"We had sold our home in Washington a little while before, and my husband had about $1,400 of the money when he went to buy the lot. When he failed to return the next day I started a search for him and discovered he never went to Polesom."

Schubert was a railroad man, and his wife went to various cities in the East in an unsuccessful effort to locate him. Later she returned to Washington and "got a hard job in the House Office Building."

Worry over her missing husband and the hard work greatly weakened Mrs. Schubert's constitution and during the last several years she has been trying to make a living embroidering. Mrs. Schubert said she makes less than a dollar a day by this work.

She decided to ask police to search for her husband when the few hundred dollars she managed to save from her wages at the House Office Building dwindled to a few cents. In case police fail to locate her husband, Mrs. Schubert hopes to live till she is 85, for then, she said, she can be eligible for Sixty Witnesses Expected to Tell of Officer's High Character.

PAST TO BE UPHELD BY "SOLID" CITIZENRY

Palmist's Story of Gifts Returned Supported by Truck Driver.

PROSECUTION'S CASE IS DECLARED CLOSED

Truckman Asserts He Saw Policeman in Home of Mrs. Blalock.

Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, suspended commander of the Second Police Precinct, may take the witness stand in his own defense before the special Police Trial Board today.

The grizzled 63-year-old veteran of the vicissitudes of police life, now in the evening of his career, is fighting desperately against the charge that he was the "Heartsore Daddy" and fervid lover of a middle-aged "dream girl" in the person of Mrs. Helen F. Blalock, former seventh street palmist and self-confessed lady of the night.

Whether Burlingame is to lead or follow a parade of high police officials and privates, bankers, lawyers and others of the "solid" citizenry of the National Capital probably will not be determined until the final minutes before the trial is resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

Sixty witnesses was the lowest estimate his counsel would make yesterday on the number of witnesses who will be called to testify to the high character of the accused captain. It is planned to dismiss the trial board and the record with praise by each person in contrast with the testimony of the "dream girl" whose charges forced Burlingame before the trial board.

Many of them were in evidence yesterday, waiting to testify, including Maj. Edwin B. Reese, superintendent of police, his assistants and every police captain in the city, as well as many District officials, including Daniel J. Donovan, auditor; Maj. James A. Luby, disbursing officer; Col. Robert N. Harper, president of the District National Bank, and others.

Burlingame heard the last of the prosecution witnesses just before adjournment of the trial shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Charles Green, a colored truckman, who resides at 2450 Ninth street northwest, confirmed Mrs. Blalock's story that she sent a galvanized wash tub full of things which Burlingame had given her, back to the police captain at his home at 1419 Twenty-second street northwest.

Truck Man Is Identified. Charles was the one witness presented by the prosecution as an actor in the story which Mrs. Blalock said she could not prove by a single person in all the world.

William L. Leahy, defense counsel, in the course of his lengthy cross-examination of Mrs. Blalock sought in vain to have her identify the truck man she said had taken the tub of things to Burlingame's residence, reading from the telephone book the name of every Charles Green listed in it and asking Mrs. Blalock about each one specifically, but the woman said she couldn't specify the truck man and he was a mythical person until called to the stand yesterday by Corporation Counsel William W. Bristle. Green is listed in the telephone book as Charles.

Under examination by Walter L. Fowler, Assistant Corporation Counsel, Charles, as he was called by both the prosecution and defense attorneys, said that he had known Mrs. Blalock four or five years, and that in the late summer or early fall of last year, he had hauled a "medium sized" galvanized wash tub,

"pretty good and full" from Mrs. Blalock's apartment at 1504 Seventh street northwest, to Burlington's home.

Tells of Palmist's Reading.

Charlie said he couldn't say what was in the tub, but Mrs. Blalock told him to be careful of it and spoke as if it contained something which might break. Mrs. Blalock told him that the things belonged to Capt. Burlingame.

Charlie told Leahy that he couldn't remember any other delivery he had made about the same time for any other person to any address nor to any street, but he described in some detail how he had delivered the tub by way of the alley to Burlington's home, where it was received by a colored maid.

He had met Mrs. Blalock first, he said, when he went into her quarters to "have a reading."

"So," Leahy exclaimed, "this woman gives readings to colored men, although she testified that she did not give readings to men?"

But Charlie said he couldn't tell about anyone else. He didn't know about that. He could only speak about his own case.

Expert Identifies Typewriter.

He had been in Mrs. Blalock's apartment several times, Charlie said, having been called to move her furniture "across the roof" from 1504 to 1504 Seventh street and for other work, such as hanging and taking down pictures.

He saw Capt. Burlingame in Mrs. Blalock's apartment while he was moving the furniture, he said.

Green was called to the stand after Dr. Wilmer Souder, Bureau of Standards scientist, had concluded his testimony, identifying the typewriter which had been in the Second Police Precinct station and later in Burlington's office as the machine on which had been written all of the love letters and other typewritten communications the prosecution has put in evidence to prove its charge.

Falls to Shake Expert.

Hour after hour Leahy sought to shake the finality and positiveness of Souder in identifying the typewriter on which the letters were written. He failed to do so, for the last time Souder said before he left the stand at the conclusion of direct examination by Fowler, was that the letters and cards and receipts all were written on the machine in question.

"You say that parts of certain letters on this typewriter print light when struck a light blow, while they show up fully when the key is struck a hard blow," Leahy asked, and Souder admitted that that was so.

"Then, doctor, these individual characteristics, these defects, of which you speak and by which you identify this machine as the one on which all of these exhibits were written, really are reducible to a question of the individuality of the writer, are they not?" Leahy pursued.

"No, sir," he is not.

"Why not?" Leahy persisted.

"Because the defects are there just the same."

Leahy Presses Examination.

Souder declared he would rather not go into the characteristics of the writer of the letters "because that might be taken as indicating who wrote the letters and I would rather confine myself to the typewriter."

But Leahy was not satisfied and a long and involved series of questions and answers ensued, but just before adjournment for lunch Souder, in response to a supposititious question said that the letters "might have been written by different operators."

There was speculation as to the purpose of the defense attorney when he questioned Souder closely as to the location of the typewriter in Burlington's office and developed the fact that it was on a small table close by a window.

New Expert May Be Called.

After lunch Leahy appeared accompanied by George Thatcher, typewriter expert of the Underwood Typewriter Co., with whom he conferred once in a while about various letters before questioning Souder about various details. Thatcher, it is thought, will later be called as a defense witness to testify that individual characteristics of operators of a typewriter resulted in different results even when the same machine was used.

Leahy did get Souder to admit that the same combinations of letters—especially "wa" and "pa"—were not spaced the same in different communications, although always Souder coupled such an admission with a qualification that in other combinations the letters were spaced the same.

On direct examination Fowler had Souder read into the record a long list of defects which he had found in the machine, but which he had not told

HAVANA PRISONER DENIES DEATH PLOT

Machado Regime Feeds Foes to Sharks, Says Exile in New York.

73 WARRANTS ARE ISSUED

Havana, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Charges by Cuban secret police that a nation-wide plot had been discovered to kill President Machado and bring about armed intervention of the United States through a coup d'état here, were denied today by Dr. Alejandro Vergara Leonard, one of ten men arrested last night as principals in the alleged plot.

"There is no truth to the charges that a plot existed against the life of President Machado," he said. "Nor is there any more truth to the charge that a revolt was planned for the purpose of bringing American intervention in Cuba."

No further arrests had been made today but police said wanted men were being sought by special operatives armed with warrants charging treason, conspiracy and sedition. Of the 73 warrants issued only 10 have been executed. Several are for the detention of men now residing in the United States, exiles from Cuba. Prominent among them are Rafael Irujo, former minister, and Dr. Enrique Selig, organizer of the Nationalist political party, avowed opponent of the Machado regime. Both Irujo and Selig reside in New York.

New York, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Octavio Selig, founder of the Cuban Nationalist party, who is accused in Havana of fathering a revolt against the Machado government, denied in a statement to the Associated Press today that his followers sought the life of the Cuban president.

On the contrary, he said, the only wish was to curtail what he called the present "system of wholesale assassination." This assassination, Selig asserted, took the form of throwing persons considered an obstacle to the Machado regime to man-eating sharks.

850 Lynn Shoe Workers Strike for Wage Raises

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Approximately 850 shoe workers in Lynn factories went on strike today for the purpose of gaining agreements with the manufacturers on wages.

Those who walked out were leaders and stockholders, members of two of the three independent unions here. The three crafts of the Shoe and Shoe Workers Union were not affected by the strike.

A meeting of the cutters, the third independent union, was called for tonight and union officials said that more than 600 cutters would join the strike tomorrow. They predicted that more than three-fourths of the shoe industry here would be crippled by the strike.

A meeting of the cutters, the third independent union, was called for tonight and union officials said that more than 600 cutters would join the strike tomorrow. They predicted that more than three-fourths of the shoe industry here would be crippled by the strike.

Powder went further than that, and spreading all of the documents Burlington is charged with writing Mrs. Blalock on the table before the trial board and Souder, asked him to point out several similarities between all of the letters.

Trial to Continue Today.

These included such things as the use of a semicolon after the salutation; giving the hour of the day on which the letters were supposedly written; the designation "second floor" on all of the envelopes; the habit of underlining various phrases, and some others.

But Souder insisted, he was not prepared to draw any conclusions from these facts as to the identity of the writer. He admitted that the different letters may have been written by different persons, but they were written on Burlington's personal typewriter and that was that and he wouldn't say anything else.

The trial will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning when all of the police captains, pick and span, as they were yesterday, are to be on hand again to testify in behalf of their comrade who has fallen into difficulties. As the conclusion of the session today adjournment will be taken, it is understood, until Tuesday morning.

SEVEN DIE IN BLAST AT STONE MOUNTAIN

Ten Others Hurt, Two Perhaps Fatally, as Compressor Explodes at Memorial.

CAUSE IS UNDETERMINED

Stone Mountain, Ga., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Seven men lost their lives and ten others were injured, several seriously, today in an explosion of an air compressor at the quarries of the Stone Mountain Granite Corporation, about a mile north of here.

The explosion occurred as the men were crowded about a time clock near the compressor, checking out after the day's work.

The dead, all of whom lived here, are: C. G. Davis, 32 years old, foreman; O. E. Cowan, 25, and John D. Glaze, 45, both drillers, and four negroes, Charles Haynes, Will Maddox, Cody Smith and Cal Howard.

The most seriously injured included John Brown, Morris Brown, Eugene Shinn, and Carl Sewell, the last named a negro. Physicians said Brown and Sewell probably would die.

Officials of the company tonight could not ascribe a definite cause for the explosion of the tank of compressed air, which was 3 feet wide and 15 feet long, but said they believed it was due either to defect or over-compression.

The explosion occurred at 3:30 o'clock, while 40 of the 180 workmen employed in the quarry were passing through the timekeeper's office 8 feet from the tank of the compressor, checking out after the day's work.

Without warning, there was a detonation as the tank exploded, demolishing the timekeeper's office and scattering bits of steel among the workmen.

The four negroes were dead when other workmen on a trail nearby reached the scene and Cowan died before an ambulance arrived. Davis and Glaze died in an ambulance en route to an hospital in Atlanta.

An accurate check of the injured was impossible tonight.

The streets of this little town were crowded with townspeople tonight, the majority of whom derive their income from the quarry.

$50,000,000 Coal Merger Announced

Six Companies Involved in Movement to Stabilize Fuel Industry.

New York, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Formation of the Amalgamated Coal Corporation, with authorized capital of $50,000,000, and described as the first step in a movement designed to stabilize the bituminous coal industry, was announced today.

The new corporation, formed under the laws of Delaware and under the guidance of Charles B. Flint, plans to organize the soft coal industry into a few large units to improve production methods, cut overhead costs, eliminate duplication in selling and employ scientists to determine how cheaply to convert coal into manifold by-products.

Michigan May Kill Liquor Life Terms

House Votes Repeal of Law Against Fourth Offense; Senate Favorable.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Amendments to Michigan's habitual criminal law, under which liquor law violators would be exempted from the life penalty provided for fourth offenders, were passed by the lower house of the State Legislature today. The vote was 73 to 18.

The amendments now go to the senate, where proponents of the measure anticipate little difficulty in obtaining favorable action. The amendments were introduced with the approval of Gov. Fred W. Green and have been the subject of considerable controversy between the governor and the Rev. E. N. Hoelscher, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Michigan.

Michigan's crime code became effective September 6, 1927, and since then fifteen men and one woman have been given life sentences under the habitual criminal section. It was the sentencing of Mrs. Elia Mae Miller to life imprisonment on a fourth conviction for liquor law violation that started agitation for amendment of the law.

2 Capital Women Flee Geneva Fire

Hotel La Residence Razed; Mrs. Herbert B. Frank Loses All in Rooms.

Geneva, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Several Americans had narrow escapes and many lost their personal effects today in a fire which reduced the Hotel La Residence to ruins before midnight. The fire was started by a gas leak from the Rhone glacier, 60 miles away. Severe cold handicapped and caused much suffering to the firemen.

Mrs. Herbert B. Frank, of Washington, lost everything, as her rooms were on one of the topmost floors. Other Americans driven out were Dr. D. J. Perkins, of Chicago and Washington, a celebrated woman botanist, and Miss Phillips Nahl, who lost all her effects.

JUDGE, IMPEACHED. LINKED WITH AIMEE

California Senate Gets Charge Hardy Knew Kidnaping Story Was False.

ACTED AS HER ATTORNEY

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Five articles of impeachment, including a charge that he knew Aimee Semple McPherson's kidnapping story was untrue when he attempted to have her vindicated by a grand jury, were filed against Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy, of Los Angeles, in the State Senate today.

The jurist's impeachment was ordered by the State Assembly after a legislative committee had investigated his acceptance of a $2,500 check from the evangelist in 1926 while her kidnapping story was under investigation.

Four of the articles detail the charge that Judge Hardy committed misdemeanors in office by acting as counsel for Mrs. McPherson's Angelus Temple and by his tactics in defending her kidnapping story.

Cards For Hickman Trial.

The fifth charge was that he issued cards of admission to the trial of William Edward Hickman for the murder of Marian Parker, thus seeking to deprive the defendant of his constitutional right to a public hearing. Hardy disqualified himself as presiding judge in the trial.

Judge Hardy, it is alleged, furnished legal counsel to the evangelist and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and to the Echo Park Evangelistic Association, which they headed, between February 1, 1925, and April 1, 1927, and also advised them in real estate, income tax and membership matters as well as disputes involving thousands of dollars.

It also is charged that during the time Mrs. McPherson disappeared and while they headed, between February 1, 1925, and April 1, 1927, and also advised them in real estate, income tax and membership matters as well as disputes involving thousands of dollars.

That Judge Hardy received, within a few days after Mrs. McPherson's disappearance, information that she had not been kidnapped or held for ransom, is charged. The articles further declare that in spite of this knowledge the jurist conducted an "investigation" and attempted to direct the action of the grand jury in a channel favorable to the evangelist, with the intention of obstructing an unbiased probe of the kidnapping story.

2 CAPONE AIDS HELD FOR GANG SLAYINGS

Pair, Machine Gunners, Face Charges of Murder in Massacre of Seven.

2 TAKEN AS ACCESSORIES

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Two members of Scarface Al Capone's gang were in custody tonight facing formal charges of murder in connection with the execution of seven members of the rival gang headed by George "Bugs" Moran, two weeks ago today.

Two other men were held as accessories after the fact of murder and Capone himself was served with a Federal subpoena at Miami Beach, Fla., ordering his appearance before a Federal grand jury here March 12.

With these developments police, who have chased theories and slim clues, building up and knocking down one solution after another, said they now knew who invaded the North Side garage on St. Valentine's Day, lined up seven members of Moran's gang, and shot them to death.

While police were sanguine and enthusiastic, the suspects they held characterized the arrests as "bun raps" and offered this, declaring the police possessed no actual evidence.

Machine Gun Experts.

The members of the Capone gang held are Jack McGurn and Rocco Faneli, known as experts with machine guns.

McGurn, a former pugilist, was found last night in the Stevens Hotel, where those investigating the Moran killings also were quartered. With him was a blond companion, Miss Louise Roife. They said they had been at the hotel for more than two weeks and were in their room at the time of the killings. Faneli was found by a detective squad on a West Side street corner.

The men, two of seventeen whose arrest was ordered in connection with the case, had been identified, police said, by witnesses from photographs as members of the execution squad. One witness said he had seen Faneli and a companion enter the garage about the time of the killings. The police also said a boy picked out McGurn following his arrest as the man he saw with a companion entering the Moran headquarters just before the killings. They also said a girl riding in Lincoln Park had McGurn and others pointed out to her as gangsters and on the day of the slayings was near the Moran garage and identified McGurn as one of the men she observed driving away from it after the killings.

Prisoner Accuses Police.

McGurn himself observed "the police probably did it themselves" and said he was ready to prove an alibi. A petition for writ of habeas corpus was filed in behalf of him and his woman companion, but no hearing was held when police said he would be booked.

The other two men held as accessories are Michael Pavis and Sam Laverde, arrested in a raid on the Circus Cabaret, a known hangout of gangsters. Police said the men were in possession of valuable information concerning the slayings, but did not state whether they had disclosed it.

The move to return Capone to Chicago was instituted by Federal authorities ostensibly to allow a Federal grand jury to question him about bootlegging operations in Chicago Heights and other suburbs. The actual purpose of the subpoena, however, it was intimated, was to bring him into the jurisdiction of the local authorities so that he might be questioned at length about the Moran gang slayings. Should he fail to appear, he might face contempt proceedings and a possible jail sentence.

Joliet Penitentiary Is Crowded.

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—The housing problem at Joliet Penitentiary was more acute than ever today. Arrival of sixteen men and one woman from Chicago had brought the prison population to the record figure of 3,166. Warden Elmer Greer has asked the legislature for $1,000,000 for new cell units.

STANSON SHIP FALLS, FOILING RECORD HOP

Flight for Endurance Mark
Falls as Plane Crashes
Through Thin Ice.

TWO AVIATORS UNINJURED

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—The attempt of Eddie Stinson and Randolph Page to set a new world's sustained flight record ended in a crash today a few minutes after they had got their plane, the Sally Sovereign, off the ice of Saginaw Bay, but the veteran Detroit aviators escaped unhurt.

After fighting to keep their plane from sinking through melting ice the two fliers at 2:37 o'clock this afternoon managed to get it off the ice and into the gasoline, about 1,000 gallons, into the air. The plane had risen only 15 feet when it suddenly dropped down, demolishing its landing gear, bending the propeller and cracking the left wing.

The smash-up came just 3 minutes after Stinson and Page had succeeded in getting the big monoplane off the ice. Those in charge of the flight said the heavy load of gasoline was too much for the plane under existing weather conditions.

Stinson afterward said the plane would have to be dismantled on the ice and brought ashore in trucks. Stinson and Page had hoped to remain in the air long enough to beat the record of the German fliers, Ristick and Zimmerman, 65 hours and 25 minutes, without refueling.

Alleged Bank Robber Is Under Observation

Raymond E. Fox, of Racine, Wis., who was with the late Charles J. Fox, who was killed in connection with the Riggs Bank robbery here, posed as a former Chicago "gangster" and "racketeer" and is now under observation at the county hospital, Milwaukee, according to Detective Sgt. P. A. Varney, who reported yesterday morning to Inspector Henry G. Pratt, chief of detectives, regarding his investigation of the two men in Milwaukee.

Varney spent three days searching the Milwaukee safety deposit vaults for the missing bonds, which Fox insisted he possessed. Varney reported, only to learn that Fox had several times previously appeared at banks and had been refused the money. Fox is the son of a wealthy resident of Racine, Varney said, and is believed to have been disinherited at the time of his marriage several years ago.

Mrs. Ruth H. Kidwell Says
She Lived With Husband

SEEK 1930 MEETING HERE

Mrs. Ruth Horn Kidwell, 17 years old, of 3811 Newark street northwest, instituted suit in the District Supreme Court yesterday to annul her marriage to Preston Kidwell, which, she said, was performed when she was only 13 years of age.

She journeyed to Rockville, Md., with Kidwell on January 26, 1925, the girl wife declared, and in obtaining the marriage license Kidwell gave her age as 18.

She lived with her husband five days, from February 9 until 14, 1925, she said, and then they separated and have never seen each other since.

The suit was filed through A. Patricia Morris as next friend of the girl. Mrs. Kidwell stated that at the time she was too young to realize the seriousness of marriage. Her husband, she said, resides alternately in the District and in Virginia.

Attorneys F. Regis Noel and William C. Ashford appeared for the girl. A previous attempt to annul the marriage was made some time ago at Rockville, but the girl was defeated when the court held the showing of fraud, a requirement for annulment in Maryland, had not been shown in the case.

Brand Nomination
Still Unreported
The Senate District Committee yesterday considered the nomination of Harrison Brand, Jr., to the other term on the Public Utilities Commission, but failed to take action.

Protests against confirmation of Brand have been made by the Central Labor Union and the People's Legislative Service, which contend that in the traction merger negotiations Brand seemed more disposed to serve the interests of the traction companies than of the public.

The committee yesterday made a favorable report on the Gibson bill to expand the public library system here. This measure already has been passed by the House. The committee took no action on the Crumpton bill providing for the acquisition of park lands in and near the District.

Chairman Capner and Senator Jones, of Washington, took the position that the bill was important that hurried action was undesirable.

Many prizes for the best posters, which depict various phases of mouth health work, have been donated and will be presented to the winners at a meeting in May.

EDUCATION CALLED TO DEMOCRACY

McNutt Declares Education
Nation's Bulwark at N. E.
A. Convention.

SEEK 1930 MEETING HERE

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—The people of this country must support their institutions of education if our Government is to remain democratic, Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, declared today at the closing session of the annual convention of the department of superintendence, National Education Association.

"The thing which has marked our people since the very beginning has been a determined faith in representative government," the legion commander said. "Are we keeping the faith? Are we succeeding with this, the greatest experiment of all ages?"

The school administrators during the morning session adopted resolutions condemning the use of public schools for propaganda designed to promote private interests; urged the expansion of the junior college system; commended the present immigration quota law.

For the convention next year the following cities placed their bids: Atlantic City, Chicago, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Memphis, Minneapolis, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Toronto, Ontario and Washington. The city will be selected late in the spring.

Traction Men Not Considering Strike
John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., and John H. Collier, secretary of the Street Railway Employees Union, emphatically denied yesterday that there is any foundation for the rumor of an imminent strike of the railway employees of the Capital Traction Co.

The agreement under which the employees are paid does not expire until March 30 and neither the president of the company nor the secretary of the union anticipates any disturbance of the union and the company.

The union said the union expected to submit a new agreement to the heads of the company within the next few weeks. The present agreement contains provision for arbitration. The union, Cookman added, is not opposed to the merger of the two railway companies of the city, but is opposed to the plan to make the Public Utilities Commission the arbiter in disputes between the employees and the company.

Street car traffic on Pennsylvania avenue, Fifteenth street, First street and on B street southwest and southeast, will be suspended after 10:30 o'clock Monday morning until after the presidential party enters the Capitol grounds, at which time street car traffic on Pennsylvania and that running across it will be resumed until 12:15 o'clock, when it will be suspended until after the parade.

Bus lines whose routes touch any part of the parade route will be permitted to follow their regular routes until 10 o'clock Monday morning. Vehicular traffic of all description, however, will be barred within the squares one block north and south of Pennsylvania avenue, one square east of Fifteenth street and one square north of B street northwest.

Parking Is Prohibited.

Furthermore, the major has issued a special order prohibiting parking within the area between East Capitol street and South Carolina avenue southeast, and Seventh street southeast to Delaware avenue southwest, between midnight March 3 until after all units of the parade which are to form in this area have been moved.

All roadways entering the Capitol grounds, with the exception of the roadways at New Jersey avenue southeast and Delaware avenue northeast, will be barricaded at 6 o'clock Monday morning and after that hour only official automobiles will be allowed to enter the Capitol grounds.

Elaborate plans have been made to care for the many thousands who are expected to witness the ceremonies at the Capitol. A detachment of 530 marines from Quantico, Va., have been furnished to augment the large force of uniformed local and Baltimore police who have been detailed to handle the crowd on the Capitol plaza.

First Aid Stations.

Traffic emergency lanes are to be maintained Monday at the following points on Pennsylvania avenue: Third, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Fourteenth street northwest, Madison place, Jackson place and Seventeenth street northwest. The general public, however, will be excluded from these lanes.

second deficiency bill included all items contained in the first but the prohibition proposal. As a substitute for the $24,000,000 fund, the House approved $2,700,000, the amount recommended by President Coolidge.

Yesterday the Senate passed the second deficiency bill after eliminating all the items of the first deficiency measure which had been placed in it by the House. Shortly after the Senate action the House asked for another conference and gave its conference committee wide powers.

Federal Authorities Plan Dry City for Inauguration

Large Force of Agents Massed in Capital to Prevent Importation of Hard Liquors; Raiders Make Inroads on Supply.

(United Press.)

The inaugural Monday is to be the "greatest" in all respects.

There will be the greatest crowd ever gathered to see a President-elect take the oath of office. The parade will be the greatest in years. The aerial spectacle of 90 airplanes and five airships will be the greatest Washington has ever seen.

Now prohibition agents have added another "greatest" to the occasion—there will be the greatest lack of liquor.

This is not price-raising sales talk by bootleggers either. Wet Washington is turning arid. Squads of special undercover prohibition agents, cooperating with the Metropolitan Police, have been using the raiding sponge most effectively.

Vendors of Virginia corn, Maryland rye and Philadelphia gin who have been in business for years are closing up shop and refusing to accept orders until after Inauguration Day, when the iron band welded by the combined efforts of Federal and city officers is expected to loosen.

Previously Washington has been told each succeeding Christmas and New Year's in the last ten years would be the driest ever, but Washington winked one eye and continued to buy assorted liquors in pretty bottles without interruption. But this time it appears the prohibition forces are serious.

Assistant Prohibition Commissioner Alf Otfield has taken personal charge of the Federal agents brought here from many of the larger cities for the express purpose of making the inauguration celebration "dry."

All roads from Maryland and Virginia over which wet goods previously have been transported by the truck load are closely guarded. Houses and buildings suspected of being used as bootlegging headquarters are picketed by heavy police guards.

In addition, policemen with soft, persuasive voices are being used to telephone bootleggers numbers and request deliveries while Federal agents and police wait in hiding to catch the unsuspecting bootleggers. One policeman trapped eleven liquor vendors in one night.

"There is no joking about it this time," Otfield told the United Press. "Washington will have less liquor in it on inauguration day than it has had for years. Our agents have been active for several weeks in a special drive to clean out the bigger bootleggers."

Bootleggers agree with the assistant prohibition commissioner that there is no joke in the present situation.

"Liquor will probably be as scarce as hen's teeth by March 4 if the prohibition agents keep up the drive," a prominent vendor said. "I know personally of twenty men who have closed up until after inaugural. We can't get anything in and they are watching us so closely we have to slip out the back door to deliver what stock we have on hand. Prices are not going up but we can't get fresh supplies."

Army Planes Lead Inaugural Review

War Department Announces the Order of Flight on March 4.

Order of flight for the military air parade during the inauguration ceremonies was announced yesterday at the War Department, and Army bombardment planes are named the leaders followed by Army observation planes, Navy observation planes, Army pursuit planes and Navy pursuit planes.

It is now contemplated that the Navy will enter in the lighter-than-air division the airship Los Angeles and two small nonrigid dirigibles, and that they will be joined by two Army nonrigid dirigibles from the Nineteenth Airship Co. at Langley field, Va. The airships will fly over the same route traversed by the heavier-than-air division immediately after the latter has passed the reviewing stand, but it is not expected that any of the lighter-than-air craft will land here at any time in connection with the exercises.

Should unfavorable weather conditions prevent arrival in Washington of Army aircraft from Langley field and Mitchell field, N. Y., as well as Navy aircraft, only such planes as are available at Bolling field will take part in the aerial review.

of the hall, admission cards must be obtained at committee headquarters, room 302, Second National Bank Building.

Because of unusual circumstances, John Coolidge, son of the President, will be in Washington for the inaugural ceremony, but not as the guest of his distinguished father and mother.

Instead he will come with Gov. Trumbull of Connecticut as a major on the governor's staff. His engagement to Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor, has added to the interest in the son of the President.

While the time of arrival of the Trumbull party has not been announced, it is believed that John Coolidge will find time for a short reunion with his parents before they depart for Northampton following the inaugural ceremony.

Announcement was made yesterday that Police Court would convene at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning and Traffic Court at 9 o'clock in order to clear the docket before cases occurring during the inauguration begin. No jury trials will be held.

Libraries to Be Closed Monday.

The public library and branches will be closed all day Monday. The central building will be open Sunday from 2 until 6 p. m. for reference and reading, but other agencies will close tomorrow at the usual time and will not reopen until Tuesday.

Two Washington dance orchestras have been added to the five musical organizations which will play for the inaugural Charity Ball Monday night at the Washington Auditorium. The Strickland-Bonbrat Orchestra has been contributed by Morris Cafritz, while the Georgetown Collegians will play a portion of the program.

The Army, Navy and Marine Band Orchestras will have a part in the musical entertainment for the ball, as will the Indian Reservation Band, from Tulsa, Okla., and the Paul Specht Orchestra from New York.

Indian War Veterans to March.

For the first time the National Indian War Veterans will participate in the inaugural parade. Camps 5 and 18 are making arrangements to appear, with members permitted to use automobiles instead of marching on foot. Lieut. J. L. Sprinkle has been named District commander of the veterans for the parade. He is the sole survivor of the group which captured the last of Geronimo's famous Indian tribe.

A party of 20 Confederate veterans from the Jefferson Davis Soldiers' Home at Elton, Miss., will visit Washington for the inaugural cere-

TEXAN IS ACQUITTED IN VOTE FRAUD CASE

McCloskey Due Next Week to Present Credentials as Representative.

VOTE CHARGES CHARGED

Austin, Tex., Feb. 28 (A.P.)—A jury in the District Criminal Court here early today acquitted Augustus J. McCloskey, Democratic Representative-elect from the Fourteenth District, of charges of fraud at the November election.

The jury took the case at 1:45 a. m., and returned its verdict, reached on the first ballot, 45 minutes later. The jurors explained that 40 minutes were required to read the judge's instructions and some documentary evidence before the ballot was taken.

The State charged that McCloskey had conspired to change election returns in Bexar County (San Antonio) to defeat Representative Harry M. Wurzbach, Independent Republican. Wurzbach has filed notices of intention to contest McCloskey's victory before the House of Representatives.

McCloskey still faces four indictments charging fraud at the election, which his attorneys announced they would ask the court to set for immediate trial. All of the cases against the Representative-elect were brought here from Bexar County on change of venue.

McCloskey said he would leave for Washington Monday to arrange details incident to presentation of his credentials to the House.

mony. A request has been made for the veterans during the parade and their visits to points of interest in the Capital.

Final instructions to parade units have been issued by Gen. Charles P. Summerall, grand marshal. All organizations will be in the places assigned for their assembly by 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. After reaching assembly positions, bands will not play until the parade starts.

Bands close enough to interfere will alternate in playing during the march. As the procession passes the Presidential reviewing stand only the Army Band at the head of the parade, and the Quantico Marine Band, head of the second grand division, will play "Hail to the Chief."

Immediately following the cessation of yesterday's rain, flags and bunting appeared on many Capital buildings which previously had not been decorated for the festivities.

Gen. Summerall has arranged for the escort of President Coolidge and President-elect Hoover from the White House to the Capitol.

The Third Cavalry Squadron will form on Pennsylvania avenue, facing south, with a color guard, opposite the northeast gate. A police detachment will form on the left. The police will be in automobiles. The escort will receive Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover at the White House and follow them to the Capitol. Returning, the new President, with Vice President Curtis, will head the procession, followed by the escort and other members of the presidential parties. Autos will follow in single file after the machine carrying the new President and Vice President.

45-YEAR-OLD FIRE PERILS MINE TOWN

Coal-Vein Blaze, Started by Strikers in the 80's, Hits Surface.

HOMES FEARED DOOMED

New Straitsville, Ohio, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—The smoldering peril of a 45-year-old fire in the coal lands of this vicinity today again menaced a section of New Straitsville as the flames, eating their way to the surface, burst out and spread a pall of deadly gas over the hillsides.

Miners were blasting around an exposed crater of nearly 80 square feet in an effort to shut off the flow of air and check the flames.

Started in the '80s by men who fired a mine in the heat of a strike, the blaze has smoldered since then, eating its way along the veins of coal and occasionally appearing at the surface. In the approximately 45 years since the fire started, the underground menace has moved several miles in each direction, causing cave-ins and raising buildings over its path.

Today six homes in the edge of New Straitsville were believed to be in the direct course of the fire and the New Straitsville Village School, the foundation of which goes through the burning vein, was menaced.

Today's blaze was declared the greatest outbreak of the fire since its start.

Millions of dollars' worth of coal have been consumed by the fire during the years it has burned and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in vain efforts to extinguish it. First sealing the mouth of a mine to cut off the air was tried, but this was in vain.

Then dynamiting was tried, and this, too, failed. Then the portions where the fire was raging were cut off from unburned portions by sinking great concrete walls into the earth, but always the fire got around the walls and continued to spread.

In winter it is not uncommon to find violets and other wild flowers growing on the hillsides heated from beneath, while 50 feet away where the fire had burrowed deeper into the earth snow may lie.

Charlie Chaplin Better; Passes Critical Period

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Charlie Chaplin, noted screen comedian, has passed the critical stage of his illness, Chaplin studio officials said today.

Mr. Chaplin's condition has improved greatly and any adverse development is exceedingly remote, his representatives said. "His temperature at noon today had fallen from a high of 101.5 degrees on Tuesday to 97 degrees."

He slept peacefully most of the day. Improvement in the actor's condition, following his collapse from an attack of pneumonia poisoning last Monday, which was accentuated by a relapse Tuesday and a slight case of intestinal influenza, was noted last night.

Soviets and British End Long Oil 'War'

Russian Interests.

Moscow, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Announcement was made today of the signature of an agreement for three years between the Anglo-American Oil Company, led by the Royal Dutch Shell group, and Russian Oil Products. The latter company by the agreement is given an equal share of the British market with the other companies concerned.

The contract, regarded as ending the long-standing Soviet-British oil war, provides for the delivery of large quantities of Soviet kerosene, crude oil and petrol to the companies in the combine. The secretary of Sir Henry Detering, manager director of the Royal Dutch Shell Co., stated today in London that the "absolutely untrue" that Sir Henry had signed a contract with the Soviets. Sir Henry himself was absent from London.

THEATER DISPUTE PUT UP TO ARBITER

National Operators and Musicians Agree to Let Judge Make Decision.

WILL CONTINUE SHOWS

Pending adjustment of differences between the management of the National Theater and the Washington Musicians' Union, the theater will operate for at least two more weeks, according to announcement made last night.

A truce in the fight to determine whether the theater should have seven or five musicians in its orchestra was reached at a meeting yesterday at which decision was made to refer the matter to an arbitrator.

The arbitrator, it was stated, probably will be a local jurist, and his first task will be to determine whether the theater's changing from traveling road shows to resident dramatic stock constitutes a change of policy. If the arbitrator decides that there has been a change in policy the theater will have to employ seven men in the orchestra if it continues to operate.

In case the manager's contention that there has been a change of policy is sustained the matter will go back to the board of directors of the musicians' union, who, under their contract, are empowered to fix the number of men a theater shall employ when a change of policy takes place.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Thomas Sand, 13, was found dead in his room last night with a bullet wound in his temple.

An aunt and uncle with whom he lived said the boy's death was accidental, but police said it was a case of suicide, probably because of a quarrel with a girl schoolmate.

PATRONAGE INQUIRY DEFIED BY CREAGER

Texas G. O. P. Chief Clashes
With Brookhart at Senate Committee Hearing.

LAYS CHARGES TO GOSSIP

R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas, yesterday defied the Senate patronage investigating committee to interfere with his party organization—the machine largely responsible for Herbert Hoover's success in Texas.

"You keep out of my State and I'll keep out of yours," Creager told Chairman Brookhart, of Iowa. "We're going ahead with our present methods in Texas, regardless of what you do or say, because they are effective and they are honorable."

"You can't run any bluff on me," replied Brookhart, who is understood to have the backing of Hoover in his investigation of alleged patronage bawling in Southern States.

"Will interfere in Texas."

"I represent all States as chairman of this committee and I intend to interfere in Texas."

In a lengthy prepared statement, Creager entered a categorical denial of testimony given by previous witnesses that he had protected Texas hotels from liquor raids by the agents whose appointments he secured and that his organization levies 10 per cent of their salaries from Federal appointees.

He characterized the testimony of Lloyd E. Hill, Fort Worth postal employee, who made the prohibition and patronage charges, as "scandalous and malicious gossip" and criticized the committee for allowing it to stand in the record of hearings.

Coercion of Appointees Denied.

Creager said most of the contributions to the Texas organization were made by non-Federal appointees, and that there had been any coercion in the collection of party contributions from postmasters or other officeholders.

He told the committee he regarded Representative H. M. Wurzbach, Texas only Republican representative, as a "man unfit to be in Congress." Wurzbach and Creager are bitter political enemies and Wurzbach has testified before the committee that the Creager machine is a detriment to Texas Republicanism.

Senate Hears Presidential Campaigns Cost $16,586,115

(Associated Press.)

The national campaign cost the two major parties $16,586,115, exclusive of expenditures by district, county, city and precinct organizations.

The Senate was given this information yesterday by its campaign funds investigating committee in a final report, which listed expenditures of $9,433,804 in behalf of the Republican party and $7,152,311 for the Democrats. The committee said the responsible political organizations and "particularly the national committees," had complied with the Federal corrupt practices act.

The investigating committee, which is headed by Senator Steiwer (Republican), of Oregon, proposed several changes in the law to tighten up the regulations governing expenditures, but it made no proposal for fixing a maximum limit upon national campaign expenditures.

Most of the expenses were attributed to the two national committees, the Republican committee being charged with $4,064,517 and the Democratic committee with $3,157,453.

Republican State committees were listed with expenditures of $4,781,957, and the Democratic State committees with $2,445,407.

The report showed that the Democratic national committee had borrowed $1,600,000 from four banks and one individual. The loans were secured by the indorsements of John J. Raskob, chairman of the committee, and W. F. Kenney and H. H. Lehman, of New York, intimate friends of Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee.

Raskob, Kenney and Lehman also were the only ones listed as contributing more than $100,000 to the Democratic war chest. Raskob being credited with $129,583, Kenney with $107,500 and Lehman with $105,000. There was one contributor of more than $100,000 to the Republican campaign fund—$172,000, by E. C. Jameson.

The Antislavery League campaign committee was listed as spending $165,328 in behalf of the Republicans, while the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment was reported as spending $453,700 for the Democrats.

The report showed that George Peek, of Illinois, agricultural leader, was given $500,000 by the Democratic national committee, of which amount he returned $105,000 after the election. Peek submitted a detailed report showing how this money was spent and the organizations to which he gave funds likewise submitted reports. Peek was chairman of the Smith independent organization committee.

Estimating the amounts expended in various States for the presidential campaign, the report showed that each party spent the most in New York State, the Republicans reporting an outlay of $995,000 and the Democrats $789,000.

New Jersey got the second largest fund for Hoover's drive, with $445,338, while Illinois was third with $395,845.

Court Ruling Ends Potash Monopoly

Franco-German Trust Loses
Two-Year Fight Over
American Combine.

New York, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Government counsel announced today that after almost two years of litigation the fight of the United States to break up operation of the so-called Franco-German potash trust in this country had ended, and all relief sought had been obtained.

Under a decree signed by Federal Judge William Bondy the Deutsches Kaliyndikat and the Societe Commerciale Des Potasses D'Alsace are enjoined from combining in the United States to violate the antitrust laws, from fixing resale prices and from making unfair discriminations among potash purchasers.

Israel B. Ocas, special Assistant United States Attorney General, who announced the settlement, said it had been reached after conferences between Government counsel, headed by Col. William J. Donovan, and counsel for the foreign companies, including Emory R. Buckner, Gilbert H. Montague and Thurlow M. Gordon.

ELEMENTS of HEALTH

IRON

The Basis of Real Skin Beauty

IRON enriches the blood and reddens the cheeks. Iron comes in milk, fruit and fresh vegetables, but a diet of milk and white bread is adequate for the maintenance of iron equilibrium in man. This is because the iron that is in milk can be very easily used by the body, according to a bulletin of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, possibly because it comes in combination with calcium. Milk is about the most complete food there is. It contains more of the elements needed by the human body than any other food. Drink a lot of it, but be sure that it is pure and wholesome, like Chestnut Farms Milk. Chestnut Farms Dairy now has a higher score than any dairy EVER attained.

These represent official Health Dept. Ratings over a period of years

1. CATTLE SCORE—Highest Average rating.
2. FARM SCORE—Highest Average rating.
3. DAIRY PLANT—Highest Average rating. We have repeatedly held and now hold the 100% rating on our dairy plant.
4. BUTTERFAT—Highest Average rating.
5. Wholesomeness, Cleanliness, and keeping qualities—Highest Average rating.

6 KILLED IN SOUTH AS FLOODS SPREAD

Assemblyman-Elect and 3
Children Die as Car
Falls in Stream.

OHIO ALSO IS RAVAGED

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Swelled to flood stage by a 48-hour downpour of rain, rivers and tributaries in Georgia, Alabama and the Carolinas swirled out of their banks today, marring cities and villages, impairing rail and highway traffic and claiming six lives in one small Georgia community.

The Ocmulgee and Oconee Rivers, in Georgia; the Coosa, Tombigbee, Black Warrior and Tallapoosa Rivers, in Alabama; and the Catawba, French Broad and Swannanoa, in the Carolinas, were the principal streams affected. Wide areas of inundation, washed-out bridges and flooded roads and rail lines were reported in the lowlands of these streams.

Georgia was perhaps the hardest hit. Here the torrents of the Ocmulgee spread out a mile wide, surged within four blocks of the main business section of Macon and threatened to overflow Central City Park. City employees worked throughout last night and this morning strengthening levees and sandbags.

Near Lincoln, Ala., the flood waters today gave up the bodies of six persons who were drowned in two automobiles that plunged into the swirling waters of Cherokee Creek flowing through a washout in the highway.

Three Children Drowned.

The bodies of Fred McWhorter, prominent attorney and a State representative-elect, and his three children were taken from the stream this morning, along with the bodies of Ben F. Foreman, of Milledgeville, S. C., and Edward Barrow, of Grovetown, Ga. Milledgeville, Ga., was marooned; Augusta, Ga., protected by levees, was cut off from the South Carolina neighbor, North Augusta, and the Southern Railway was forced to reroute its trains between Macon and Atlanta as water a foot deep flowed over its tracks.

Flood stage also was approached by swollen streams in the Carolinas. Many streets in Greenville, S. C., were flooded as a result of a 2-inch precipitation last night.

Many roads were closed to traffic in South Carolina. Central Alabama was threatened with the worst flood since 1919 as the rivers rose. Trains of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad were delayed indefinitely near Ozark, Ala., by washouts.

Windstorms added to the damage in both Georgia and Alabama.

Ohio Sections Menaced.

Cleveland, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Flood conditions continued to threaten three widely scattered sections of Ohio tonight, but over the remainder of the State high waters were receding and leaving residents to take stock of damage, which has passed the $2,000,000 mark.

The worst menace, that of the Ohio River in the vicinity of East Liverpool, was averted today when that stream, after rising to within its flood stage of 23 feet, began to recede. Hundreds of residents of lowlands in the vicinity of East Liverpool and Pennsylvania and West Virginia villages, who had prepared to move their belongings and stock, found their fears allayed.

The Tuscarawas River, although receding in Stark County, continued to pound at levees which alone prevented it from flooding a section of Dover. The Scioto was out of its banks in Pike County and the Maumee remained a threat at Toledo.

The Scioto continued to rise steadily, and today had inundated thousands of acres of lowlands in Pike County.

The Maumee, checked by an ice pack, remained 11 feet above normal at the town of Maumee, south of Toledo. At Toledo the stream was 17 inches above normal, having risen a foot since last night.

Railway Express In Carriers' Hands

New Company to Take Over
Business Today; Check for $32,331,000 in Deal.

New York, Feb. 28 (U.P.).—At midnight tonight the $300,000,000 annual business of the American Railway Express Co. and the physical properties of that concern were transferred to the Railway Express Agency, Inc., an organization formed by the railroads to take over the Nation's express business.

The final details of the transfer—the greatest of physical property in the Nation's history—will be concluded tomorrow when bankers for the railroads hand R. E. M. Cowie, president of the American Railway Express Co. and president-elect of the Railway Express Agency, Inc., a check for $32,331,000. Thus the American Railway Express Co. will be a concern with no executives, no physical properties and cash assets of $40,000,000.

Woman's Cafe Twice Bombed.

Chicago, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—The second bomb within three days exploded in the restaurant of Mrs. Margaret Shepard last night. Woodwork was torn out and windows broken, but no one was injured. A more powerful bomb exploded at the same restaurant early Monday morning. Competitors are blamed.

Famous Physician and Wife Die in Mystery Suicide Pact

Prof. Clemens Priquet, Inventor of Tuberculosis Serum
Test and Former Johns Hopkins Faculty Member, Dead in Vienna; Traces of Narcotics Discovered.

Vienna, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Prof. Clemens Priquet, inventor of a serum skin test for tuberculosis now used throughout the world, and for two years professor of pediatrics at Johns Hopkins University, was believed by the police tonight to have committed suicide with his wife. Their bodies, in close embrace, were found in their home here today. Police found traces of narcotics.

They also learned that the professor recently had sent his will and valuable papers to his lawyer, had lost a suit against his brother-in-law entailing heavy financial obligations, and that Mrs. Priquet had been seriously ill for two months following an operation.

A fourth suspicious circumstance was that they had chosen to go to bed at an unusual hour, and in the absence of a servant and a niece with whom they lived.

The physician, who was 54 years old, was most popular in Austria because of his self-sacrificing labors and distinguished success in caring for the tubercular children of the republic. He was an international authority on diseases of children, and many American doctors had studied at his famous "Kinderklinik." He was the author of several standard medical works.

Priquet in his youth desired to become a priest and studied theology. He later decided to devote his life to assuaging human suffering.

He was a vice president of the American-Austrian Society and was formerly connected with the relief administration of Herbert Hoover in Austria. A short time ago he was considered as a successor to President Hainisch, but when he failed to get the office he made plans with his wife to settle in the United States.

He was the son of Baron Peter Priquet, a famous statesman of the old empire, and was born here. He is survived by two grown children, one of whom is a physician.

The police arranged for an autopsy on the bodies tomorrow.

Coughing Spell Loosens Coin Swallowed by Child

Somerville, Ala., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—An influenza cough succeeded where medical science had failed here today. After an unusually severe coughing attack, a 5-cent piece that had stuck in the throat of 3-year-old Walter Wade was dislodged and removed.

The child swallowed the coin last September and efforts of several surgeons to locate it failed. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wade, said Walter had suffered intensely at times.

Former Diplomat Dies.

Milwaukee, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Baron Peter von Paumgarten, 71, former diplomat, died suddenly last night of heart disease. The baron, a native of Graz, Austria, was in the diplomatic service for 35 years, retiring in 1900, after serving in St. Petersburg, London, Stuttgart, Germany and Washington.

LAGUARDIA MAKES SECRETARY BRIDE

New York Representative, 46, and Miss Marie Fisher, 33, Quietly Married.

WAS EMPLOYE 15 YEARS

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York was married yesterday to Miss Marie Fisher, who has been his secretary for 15 years. The ceremony, marked with secretiveness and simplicity, was performed at 1633 Q street northwest by Representative O. J. Kvale, of Minnesota, who is a minister of the Lutheran Church.

The attendants of the bride and bridegroom, Mrs. Ray Tucker and Representative John M. Morin, of Pennsylvania, were the only others present at the ceremony, which was intended to have been kept secret.

News of the marriage originated from a license which the bride obtained at the District Supreme Court Building. Mr. LaGuardia reluctantly admitted the marriage when questioned by newspaper men at the Capitol.

The license gave his age as 46 and that of Miss Fisher as 33. Mr. LaGuardia was a widower. His first wife died several years ago. He said that Miss Fisher had been his secretary in New York City prior to his advent to Congress. The honeymoon, the groom said, would be deferred until the adjournment of Congress on Monday.

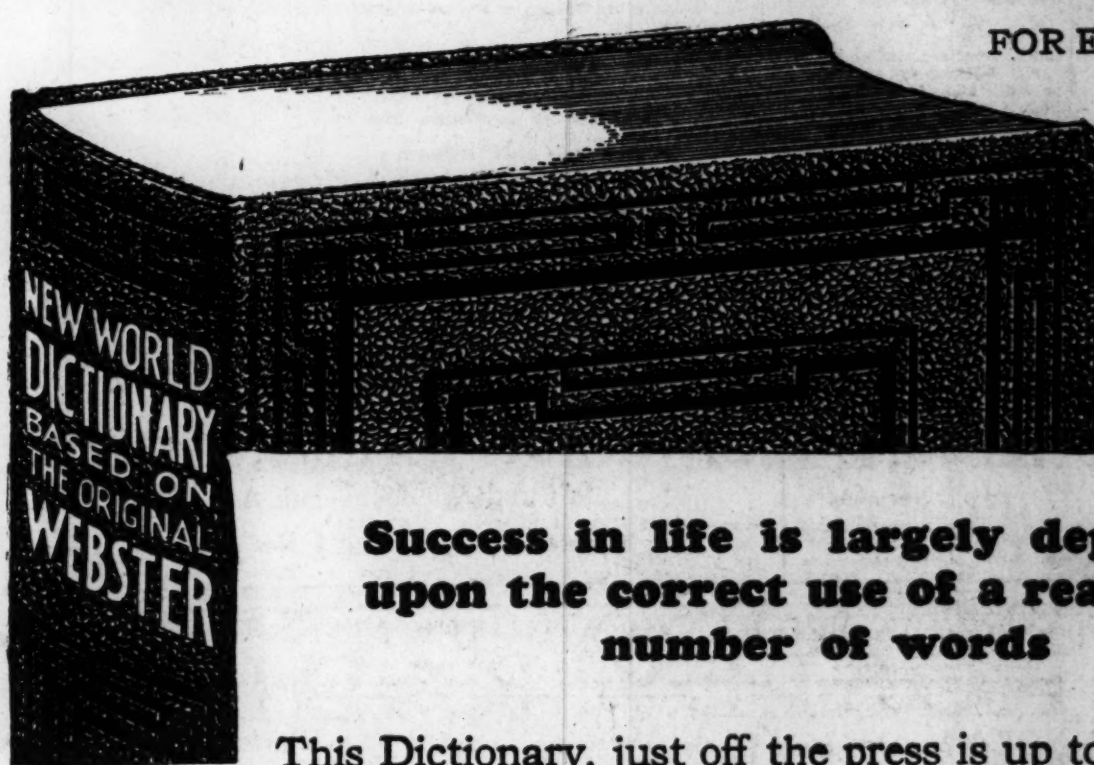

Miss Fisher gave her local address as the Cairo Hotel.

ARCADE MARKET

Service: Economy

Here's an Institution
You Ought to Know About

The Arcade is Washington's most modern market—where every dealer is self-pledged to the four-fold principle of Cleanliness, Quality, Service and Economy.

Whether you are wanting the necessities for the pantry and the table; or the delicacies of the season, they are here—representative of the very best the market affords in every line—Meats, Poultry, Game, Fruits, Vegetables, Fish, Groceries, Dairy Products, Bakery Goods, Delicatessen, Confectionery, Flowers—and so on—through the entire list of table and cooking needs.

QUALITY is the first consideration of every dealer in the Arcade Market—and when you consider QUALITY you will find Arcade Market prices comparing MORE THAN FAVORABLY with those quoted elsewhere.

Community of interests and combination of facilities minimize overhead expense—and that is reflected in the continuously prevailing moderate prices in this market—while they raise service to its highest efficiency.

You have the widest variety for selection, with the personal attention assured of each individual dealer catering directly to every customer—with a genuine concern for that satisfaction which will make you "want to come back."

APRIL 10 DATE FIXED FOR EXTRA SESSION

House Leaders Propose Time to Hoover; Farm and Tariff Lead.

COMMITTEES WILL MEET

(Associated Press.)
The special session of Congress for consideration of farm relief and tariff revision probably will be called on April 10 as a result of suggestions placed before President-elect Hoover by House Republican leaders.
Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, majority floor leader, announced yesterday that this date, subject to change, had been proposed to Mr. Hoover after consultation with the chairman of the House agriculture and ways and means committees as to when they would be ready to report the farm and tariff bills. The President-elect, he added, had previously informed the leaders that he would be willing to abide by their judgment. The date of April 10 previously had been mentioned for the start of the session.
Tilson said the farm bill would be given precedence over the tariff measure. The former, he said, would be ready for House consideration around April 10 and could be disposed of in about a week. Chairman Hawley had informed him, he said, that the tariff bill would be completed by April 15. Tilson said the session would require from three weeks to a month to pass.

Farm Bill Hearing Today.
The House agriculture committee will meet today to consider plans for calling of witnesses on a proposed farm bill. Republican members of the ways and means committee have been called to meet Saturday to map out a course of procedure for the subcommittee which will draft the rate changes to be incorporated in the new tariff measure.

Declaring there were too many uncertain factors entering into the situation, Tilson said he would not make a prediction as to how long the special session would last.
A large majority of the House members, he said, believed that much could be gained if the session was confined to farm relief and the tariff. The House would be ready and willing, however, he said, to take action on a reorganization bill and any measure dealing with the fifteenth decennial census should the Senate legislate on these subjects.

It was the constitutional duty of Congress to take care of these matters, he said, and any consideration of them during the special session would not be regarded as in violation of any plan to confine it to special legislation.

Reapportionment Bill Delayed.
The House early this session passed a bill to reapportion its membership on the basis of the 1920 census, but the Senate laid it aside for the remainder of the session. Senator Vandenberg (Republican, Michigan), in charge of the bill in that body, however, said he had abandoned his efforts to get a vote now on the assumption that it would be taken up at the special session.

A proposal to tack onto the reapportionment measure an amendment to change the date for the beginning of the next census has been under consideration. Should no change be made the fifteenth decennial population count will be started on January 1. Tilson said he believed farm legislation should be initiated in the House, but he regarded it as likely that the Senate would start on its own bill without waiting for the House to act.
"I think the tariff will be very carefully drawn," he added. "We are not going to run wild on this as some have been trying to make the people believe."

Present plans of House leaders call for organization of only four committees for the special session, the ways and means, agriculture, rules and accounts. Authority for the first two to hold hearings after adjournment of the short session is contained in the second deficiency bill. Should this fall of enactment leaders hope to obtain the authority by special resolution.

LINDBERGH AND FIANCEE TAKE TRIPS IN BORROWED AIRPLANE

appeared on the field. Lindbergh's arm was in a sling, covered by his coat, which was thrown over his right shoulder. He talked to officials at the field, inquiring which plane he could use and also about repairs on the four-passenger plane damaged in yesterday's crash.

Both in Good Spirits.

Miss Morrow remained in the automobile until Lindbergh had arranged for the plane—an open two-seater biplane of the military fleet model. She smiled as Lindbergh returned to the machine and they went together to the borrowed military plane.

The flier was wearing a helmet and Miss Morrow also donned a helmet and goggles just before entering the plane. They took off at 10:27 a. m., circling within sight of the field for ten minutes and then descending.

Lindbergh, making good use of his one good arm, taxied the plane about the field for several minutes and then took off again. Shortly afterward he landed again and took off the third time without stopping. He finally brought the plane to rest at 10:30 a. m.

All of Miss Morrow's nervousness was gone as the couple stepped from the plane, smiling. They left immediately for their automobile, Miss Morrow driving.

Early Wedding Expected.

With the announcement this morning that both Lindbergh and Miss Morrow were completely recovered after the crash yesterday which dislocated the flier's shoulder, speculation centered on the couple's future plans. It was believed that the flier would remain in Mexico for some time.

Friends of the Morrow family said they would not be surprised if the ambassador's daughter and Lindbergh were "married any time now," although it has been announced that proper announcement of the wedding will be made. Both Ambassador Morrow and Lindbergh are well known for their sudden decisions and, their friends say, the real delay in divulging plans for the ceremony is due to a discussion of whether the wedding should be held in the capital or at the Morrow home at Cuernavaca.

Lindbergh, it is understood, has expressed his willingness to leave the plane entirely to his fiancée and her family.

Skill Saved Lives.

No trace of the right wheel of the plane in which the couple crashed yesterday had been found today, although a few more details of the mishap were learned. Lindbergh, it was said, told Miss Morrow to sit in the rear of the cabin, surrounding her with pillows, as he attempted to land the plane on one wheel. His action probably saved her from injury, officials said, although his great skill in handling the plane no doubt prevented greater damage when it turned over after running about 30 yards on the landing field.

Both were flooded with telegrams of congratulations today, but it was revealed that Ambassador Morrow did not know of the mishap until two hours after it happened. When newspaper men called on him at 4:45 p. m. yesterday, he apparently had not been told, probably due to the fear that he might not wish Miss Morrow to make any more flights.

Photographers, who were barred from the field yesterday, were permitted to photograph the damaged plane today.

Sellers Is Ordered To Advocate Office

Rear Admiral May Succeed Campbell as General After Transfer.

Orders issued yesterday assigning Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, now commanding the special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, to the office of the judge advocate general of the Navy in this city, indicate his succession to the post of judge advocate general, following Rear Admiral E. H. Campbell's (present incumbent) order to command the special service squadron.

Rear Admiral Sellers, who was born in Texas in 1874, succeeded Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer as commander of the special service squadron in 1927. He was on duty at San Francisco during the international exposition of 1912, and attended the Naval War College in 1916.

During the World War he commanded the transport Agamemnon and the battleship Wisconsin, and following the war served in the office of naval operations and on the staff of the Naval War College. In 1921 he was aid to Secretary of the Navy Denby and also served as commander of the naval training station at San Diego, and as chief of staff of the scouting fleet.

Two army groups of Feng Yu Hsiang, so-called Christian general, were reported southwest of Tschow, Shanghai, proceeding to Chefoo for the purpose of "reclaiming Shanghai for the Nationalist government." ## NEW REPARATIONS PLAN IS COMPLETED

Experts Have Form Based on Each Country Absorbing
German Bonds.

$300,000,000 U. S. LIMIT

Paris, Feb. 28 (U.P.).—The reparations experts committee, working in three separate groups, virtually has completed a skeleton form for the proposed plan by which reparations payments to the allied nations will be collected from Germany. It was learned from reliable sources tonight.

An American spokesman said the bankers committee, dealing with the commercialization of the German debt, still was undetermined as to the amounts of German bonds which each country will be expected to absorb, but the pro rata basis depends largely on the primary demands from European countries, notably France.

If France should market a large amount of German bonds, it would naturally be expected that the United States would take a correspondingly larger amount, it was said. American bankers still insist, however, that the United States will not take in excess of $300,000,000, or allow the market to be flooded.

The first summary plan for the international bank, or clearing house, which will act as a trustee for German reparations certificates, will be read before the plenary conference session Monday by Lord Revelstoke, of England.

J. P. Morgan, of the United States; Sir Josiah Stokes, of Britain, and Revelstoke—all of whom have been absent from Paris for the last few days—will return for Monday's plenary session.

Alberto Pirelli, chief Italian delegate, probably will be represented Monday by Antonio Suvich, second Italian delegate. Pirelli has been called to Milan a second time, due to the serious illness of his father.

The three subcommittees continued their work today, the Thomas N. Perkins committee meeting for the first full session to discuss deliveries of raw material.

Members of the bankers committee on commercialization will spend the week-end conferring with financial leaders in their own capitals, preparing for the establishment of the international bank. Morgan is expected to go to London.

Model Traffic Ordinance For Municipalities Framed

By A. W. KOEHLER
Secretary, National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

(The following is the fifth of a series of special articles dealing with a Nation-wide effort to promote traffic safety and reduce the chaos which has been produced by lack of uniform and scientific laws governing the operation of motor vehicles.)

From the beginning of its work it has been the consensus of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety that to the several States should be reserved the broad general control of motor vehicle operation. Accordingly, attention was first concentrated upon formulating a uniform vehicle code having this end in view. It was equally apparent that municipalities are confronted with special problems that no State law could or should aspire to cover, and so the conference next undertook formulation of a model municipal traffic ordinance.

Harmony is Sought.

A tentative draft of the model ordinance was distributed to public officials, particularly police, citizens' organizations and other interested groups throughout the country, with invitations for criticism. Some suggested changes found in the response were incorporated in the final draft, which contains these essential features, as follows:

1. Recommends the creation of an official traffic body in each city.
2. Recommends the establishment of a division of traffic engineers and the employment of a city traffic engineer.
3. Recommends the adoption of uniform official traffic signs.
4. Recommends the installation of traffic control signals on streets where traffic is heavy.
5. Provides that where traffic signals are used the movement of traffic shall be directed by the words "Stop," "Go," and "Caution," or "Wait," or by the use of colored lights.
6. Where colored lights are used, red shall indicate "Stop," green shall indicate "Go," and yellow shall indicate
"Caution," or "Wait."
7. Provides that pedestrians shall be given the right-of-way over vehicles at all crossings, except where traffic is regulated by an officer or signals.

8. Provides that pedestrians shall yield right-of-way to vehicles at all places other than crossings.

Pedestrians Must Yield.

9. Provides that where traffic is controlled, pedestrians must yield right-of-way to vehicles proceeding under a "Go" signal.
10. Provides rules regarding driving past street cars.

11. Provides that railway trains and street cars shall not block the streets.
12. Provides that vehicles shall not stop in certain specified places.

13. Provides for the establishment of loading zones for passenger and freight vehicles, also for bus stops and taxicab stands.

14. Prohibits buses and taxicabs from parking in places other than designated stands or zones.

15. Provides that parking shall be entirely prohibited in certain places and limited in designated places.

16. Provides that no vehicle be permitted to park in such a manner that less than 10 feet of the width of the roadway is left available for traffic.

All Traffic to Right.

17. Prohibits all-night parking.
18. Prohibits the use of a vehicle on the streets for the primary purpose of displaying advertising.

19. Provides that all vehicles shall keep on the right side of the street, and that slow moving vehicles keep as close as possible to the right curb.

20. Provides that right turns shall be made from the right hand curb and that left turns shall be from the traffic lane nearest the center of the street.

21. Provides that all left turns shall be made on the "Go" signal, unless otherwise directed by a police officer.

22. Provides that turning around shall be prohibited unless movement can be made in safety and without backing.

23. Provides that vehicles emerging from alleys or private driveways shall stop before proceeding across sidewalk.

24. Provides that all vehicles shall come to a stop before entering a
"through street."

25. Provides that vehicles left unattended on street shall have brakes set and engine stopped.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE STUDY OF HUMAN BEINGS. Yale University has been left $6,000,000 for the study of human beings. A beginning might be made with the following curious cases:

1. The leisurely automobile driver who would fight before he would move over and let a faster-moving vehicle pass.
2. The hotel clerk who makes it a point to give the guest who asks for a quiet room a room directly over a bowling alley, dance hall or rifle range.
3. The fellow who always takes his stand in the doorway of a crowded car and won't yield an inch to let anybody in.
4. People who get a kick out of arriving at the theater in the middle of the first act.
5. Women who keep parrots in apartment houses.
6. The radio nut who is always trying to get distance.
7. The cook who makes apple pie without removing the seeds.
8. The moving picture house manager who seems to think a patron will excuse a bad picture, poor ventilation and terrible music if he gets three bows from an usher in a fancy uniform.
9. The golfer who never lets another fellow through.
10. Singers who vocalize with the windows open.
11. Secretaries who ask "Who wants him?" before telling you over the phone whether the boss is in or not.
12. Professional prohibition workers who make their own gin.
13. The man who won't buy an automobile unless the horn plays "So-la-mi."
14. The father who lets his little boy take corner lessons.
15. The adult who keeps a complete snare-drummer's outfit in the closet and always drags it out and goes berserk after the third cocktail.
16. Golfers who wear red, white and green socks.
17. People who eat candy at musical recitals.
18. Men who can't concentrate, but love to play bridge.
19. Women who say, "I think bridge is wonderful if you don't take it too seriously," and then spend the entire evening delivering dirty looks to partners who are doing the best they can, but can't keep track of trumps.

20. Doctors who make patients give their life histories to office attendants before receiving the treatment.

21. The fellow who has never been ahead of the game, but who sits in a brokerage office all day telling people the good of stocks to buy.

22. Radio fans who never let the set have full play until after midnight.

23. The child who likes spinach.

24. The man who is still influenced by the assertion, "It's just of the best."

25. The fellow who thinks newspaper work must be chiefly interesting "because you meet so many interesting people."

26. The woman who seeks security in life by marrying a circus trapeze performer.

27. The man who drives an automobile without a rear light at night on a main highway.

28. The fellow who would rather make a transcontinental trip by motor bus than by train.

29. The politician who can stand being referred to as "Honest John" without laughing.

30. Fancy skaters.

31. The girl who chooses a career as a professional harpist.

OR THE FIRST BOMBING PLANT.

"New Chinese War Expected in Spring," Headline. Obviously, in China instead of looking for the first bombing plant, father goes to the door and says, "Hark! Spring has come. I just heard the first cannon."

Col. Lindbergh is reported as acting a little cold toward newspaper men lately. Perhaps a recent headline in a Jacksonville newspaper accounts for it. It read, "Air Lover Lands."

Germany will be allowed 60 years to pay off the war debts to the United States. By that time she should get so used to it that it won't hurt at all.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREAD WINNER

The Children

By EDITH WHARTON.

A sparkling serial story by one of America's foremost novelists at the gleaming heights of her power.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Marion Boyne, a girl of sixteen, has been kept busy on projects in all parts of the world, in taking an ocean trip, in looking forward to another fortnight of solitude, when the steward placed a chair next to her (Mrs. Cliffe Wheeler).

Cliffe Wheeler was a schoolmaster of his at Biarritz. His wife, Mrs. Cliffe Wheeler, was a woman called "Boop" by name to Judith. She is the oldest child of the Wheelers. The oldest boy's name is Terry, and his health is poor. "Boop" recalls the tangled love affairs of the Wheelers to Marion, and she recalls her husband's death. Terry, the half-apparent to the Wheeler fortune, has been interested in his half with his parents to obtain a tutor, for which you may send a stamped address to the Wheeler family.

CHAPTER XVII.

ON THE afternoon of the fourth day Boyne stood again in the sitting room of the chalet facing the Cristallo group.

He had wired to Judith Wheeler, "All right, don't worry," but to Mrs. Wheeler he had made no sign. He knew she did not wholly approve of his journey, though she had made no unfavorable comment and had even offered of her own accord to keep an eye on the Pension Rosengut in his absence. It was not necessary for Rose Sellers to formulate objections; they were latent everywhere in her delicate person, in the movements of her slim apprehensive fingers, the guarded air of her lips.

But the sense of their lurking there, vigilant guardians of the threshold, gave a peculiar quality to every token of her approval. Boyne told himself that she was not a denier, but that rarer being, a chooser, and he was almost certain where her choice would lie when all the facts were before her.

She was out when he reached the chalet, and his conviction strengthened as he sat awaiting her. It drew its strength from the very atmosphere of the place—the self-sufficing harmony, "Willkommen, suesser Daemmerchen."

His astrophotop took in the light landscape, the white snow, the sense of peace flowed in on him from those great fastnesses of sun and solitude, with which the little low-ceilinged room, in its looking down the bit of needlework in the armchair, the half-written letter on the desk, had the humble kinship of quietness.

And continuity. "I'd forgotten that anything had any meaning," he thought to himself as he let the spell of the place weave its noiseless dream about him.

"Martin—how you tired you look!" She was on the threshold, her hands and lips together. He remembered the kiss afterward. She lingered close, her arms on his shoulders. "I didn't even know you'd got back." There was the faintest shadow of reproach in her tone.

"I didn't know till the last minute when I could get away—I just jumped. I was conscious of the weariness in his voice. He passed his hand over his eyes as though to wipe away the weariness away her image, or if there were still women like her in the world, all made of light and reason. Dear!" he said, to himself, then he looked at her.

"You've failed?" Her eyes were full of an unmarked sympathy; there was nothing in them to remind him that she had foreseen his failure.

"No," he exclaimed, "I've succeeded!" "Oh—" He fancied he detected a hint of triumph in her eyes. "It was not, he knew, when one has to resign oneself to the hearing of good news. But no; he was unafraid. It was the fact that the echo of his own fatigue. For, as she said, he was tired—thoroughly tired."

"You don't look like somebody who has succeeded."

"I dare say not. I feel rather like one of the fellows who get down into a disused well, and haul up half-aphysiated."

"Some of it, most of it. But I'm coming to. And I've got what I wanted." He returned her smile, and set down beside her.

"How wonderful! You mean to say you've reconciled the Wheelers?"

"I've reconciled them to the idea of my coming to the children—for the present, at any rate."

"Oh, Martin—splendid!" She was really warming to the subject and her face glowed with a delicate animation. "It will do Terry more good than all the Alps and Dolomites piled on top of one another."

Yes and Judith, too, incidentally. He had no intention of not including Judith in his victory.

"Of course, but Judith's a young lady who is eminently capable of fighting her own battles," Mrs. Sellers smoothly rejoined.

"He ought to be—he's had to fight everybody else."

He leaned his head against the back of his armchair and wondered what had become of the fellow who with his hand entered the room. It had vanished instantly under the cool touch of Mrs. Sellers' allusion to Judith. He had succeeded. It was true; there could be no doubt he had succeeded. The mere fact of gaining time was nine-tenths of the battle, and that he had already achieved. But already, too, he was beginning to wonder how he was to fit Rose Sellers into the picture of his success. It was curious, when they were apart it was always her courage and her ardor that he felt; as soon as they came together again she seemed hemmed in by little restrictions and inhibitions.

"Do tell me just what happened," she said.

Well—at the very last minute they decided to make a dash for it, the children's guardian—a sort of trial guardian, you might call it.

"A trial guardian? Her intention, and the laugh that followed it, lifted the term into the region of the absurd. "What a jolly thing to be a trial guardian!"

"Well, I'm not so sure," Boyne faced her irritably. "It's not a joke, you know."

"I shan't know what it is till you explain."

Explain—explain! Yes; he knew now

Red chenille, a net-like material, is used effectively in this novel dinner gown, dotted with tiny pompons in varying sizes. It is posed over a brilliant red satin foundation. (Courtesy of Yvonne Davidson, Paris.)

(Editor's note: Dare doesn't seem to realize this is one of the penalties of being popular.)

Isn't it disgusting? O'wan, sympathize with me!

A yard and a half of one color, and two and a half of another—that's what you need to make the nightgown and the two steps in the hall to make it make in this week's illustrated letter, for which you may send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post.

It's very effective and very new, you know, and then the designs are actually nice, too. Better hurry with that envelope!

Parfums.

Still giving you the names of the perfumes put out by one perfume artist in Paris, just to show you that you shouldn't take perfume fads too seriously, and that early in life you should select a perfume which suits your own personality and expresses you, and stick to it!

Rue de la Paix, Santal, Shalimar, Sillage, Skins, Shere's Caprice, Tazoo, A Travers, Champagne, Une rose, Vague Souvenir.

Red is one of the smart evening colors of the season, and Yvonne Davidson uses it in a gown of red chenille over red crepe satin foundation. It is dotted with varying sizes of tiny pompons, and dips at the back with a ruffled effect of the chenille, unpomponed, as it were.

See Titian-Brunettes.

"Red-heads" of either type must strictly and seriously avoid wearing red of any shade at any time, and any pink or coral shades that flatter the hair and does not detract from it. These, and the colors we told you about yesterday, are about the only ones for red Titian-brunettes. Just having red hair does not warrant her wearing the vivid blues and greens unless she has a shade of blue in her hair, while they may flatter the hair, give her eyes no added lustre and if anything detract from them.

Be sure to read Mrs. Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Post.

Au Revolt!

that the explaining was just what he was dodging away from. To Judith and Terry no explanations would be necessary. He would only have to say: "It's all right, and be smothered in hugs and jubilation. These two would never think of asking for reasons—life had not accustomed them to expect any. But here at lovely Loggia, her long hands clasped at her throat, she pressed the catch of a morocco box. The lid flew open, and revealed a curious crystal pendant in a network of work enamel.

"Oh, the lovely thing! For me?"

"Oh, no; not that," he stammered. He jerked the trinket back, wrapped the box up and pushed it into his pocket with the exasperated sense of blushing like a boy over his blunder.

"Here—He delved deeper, pulled out another parcel, in wrappings equally untidy, and took up one of the hands lying on her knee. "This is for you," he said, and slipped on her finger a sapphire set in diamonds. She lowered her lids on it in gentle admiration. "It's much too beautiful," her lips protested. Then her mockery sparkled up at him. "Only you've put it on the wrong hand—at least, if it's meant for me."

"Look as if it were, doesn't it?" he bantered back; but inwardly he was thinking: "Yes, that's just the trouble with her—she's too beautiful for me."

He had been trying an engagement ring on her finger (preposterous fancy!) would have blurted out at once that he preferred the trinket he had shoved back into his pocket. But such tactlessness was unthinkable in

WORK ON BRIDGE

AUCTION BRIDGE AND CONTRACT BRIDGE.

"The Auction bridge unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values for tricks under-tricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, etc. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing."

As a special service to our readers Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

The original bid of three of a Major suit in Contract shows a hand which probably will produce four tricks (game) if the partner furnish one trick; three of a Minor indicates about the same measure of strength and urges the partner to bid No Trump if he can, or to jump the Minor to four or five if he thinks his hand can take one or two tricks. The original three bid in a Minor naturally indicates a hand containing some one or two very short suits which have made a No Trump bid inadvisable.

Three-bids are really the easiest of all for the partner to answer because they present such accurate measurements. Illustrations of sound suit-bids of three follow:

What Today Means to You

March 1.

By MARY BLAKE FISKE.

IF March 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 7:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m.; from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m.; from 5 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.; and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to noon and from 7:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Today's planetary aspects indicate a sense of security and self-confidence that will enable you to see a clear way out of all the difficulties that beset you at the present time. Follow your careful judgment; disaster is averted.

The child born today will be vivacious, but easily angered. It must be taught in early youth to curb its impetuosity, and restraint is a violent mood. It will be intelligent and quick to learn.

You are optimistic, cheerful and bright. No one can make you believe that any venture in which you are interested can fail, and your disappointment, when failure overtakes you, is only short-lived. You immediately tackle a fresh proposition with undimmed enthusiasm.

You are impulsive and have an intuitive rather than analytical mind. You possess considerable literary ability and could possibly achieve a fair measure of success in this line of endeavor if you trained your mind and developed your talent.

You possess originality, independence and adequate ambition. One of your drawbacks is over-sensitiveness, and you become so being directly aimed at you. This occasionally damps your ardor and checks your usual optimism; you become, but only for a short time, morose, reserved and silent. Your resiliency soon comes to the rescue and you then resume your habitual cheerfulness.

You are, although possibly not an executive, very fond of music. You like to stay at home and derive your greatest enjoyment from family life. You promise to be a good marriage partner, and will be tremendously sincere and extremely loyal, while your congeniality and cordiality will conduce to meriment and avoid differences and jars.

Successful people born today: John L. Taylor, jurist; Willford Woodruff, fourth president Mormon Church; Thomas B. Thorpe, author; John James Flinn, poet and journalist; William Dean Howells, author and poet; Blanche K. Bruce, United States senator.

PRICES STRONG AT CLOSE

New York, Feb. 28 (A.P.)—With no fear of an increase in the Federal Reserve discount rate after the close, and with call money in unexpectedly ample supply despite a rate of 10 per cent, bulls stepped the most vigorous demonstration in more than a fortnight on the stock market today, taking their cue from several favorable news developments.

About a dozen coppers and more than a score of miscellaneous industrial and specialties were rushed up to record prices for the year or longer, and total sales mounted to 4,971,360 shares, the largest day's business since the sharp break three weeks ago. The Associated Press price indices made the best gains since the rally of February 11. Both the 50 industrial and 20 utilities mounted more than 3 points, the utilities getting within less than a point of their high record.

Money Pours Into Market.

Although banks called about $400,000 in loans, making total loans called this week to meet March 1 requirements about $100,000,000, large sums of money were reported to have been poured into the market late in the session, attracted from private and foreign sources by the high rates. With money coming in from sources outside the Federal Reserve control, and the Reserve Bank unable to raise its discount rate without embarrassing the Treasury in its $500,000,000 refinancing due March 15, the bull party felt its master of the situation.

Even the expectation of an increase in brokers loans caused no qualms. The figures as published for the day showed a gain of $300,000,000, undulating in part the reduction of $192,000,000 in the previous two weeks. Despite the admonitions of the Federal Reserve, the New York banks put $67,000,000 into the market. Out of town banks, however, withdrew $95,000,000. The accounts of others gained nearly $58,000,000.

The day's news included another sharp rise in copper prices, higher dividend rates by Greene Cananea and Inspiration Copper companies, declaration of initial dividends, on a $5 annual basis, on Kansas City Southern common, and another assessment of excellent earnings statements for 1928.

Market Falters Somewhat.

The market faltered somewhat when call money mounted to 3 1/2 per cent around midday, but surged forward in the last hour. Radio dropped sharply, then shot back on the sale of the country's express business to the railroads to take effect overnight, express shares were skyrocketing, and American Express, United Fruit and American Railway 15. National Tea responded to reports of excellent earnings with a 16-point jump.

The bull party was characterized in some quarters as a prearranged demonstration, as great expectations of commercial and industrial expansion under the new administration are being widely expressed in Wall Street.

Wheat led the upturn in the copper with a gain of 7 points. U. S. Steel selling at $17.75 divided, mounting nearly 8 points to 19 1/2, within 1/2 of its point of its record. Steel shares again made new high ground. Utilities made marked gains. Commonwealth Edison and Laclede Gas mounting about 7 and 5 points, respectively. American Southern Gas again achieved new highs. Motors and rails were quiet.

Matheson a Soft Spot.

Matheson Alkali was a soft spot, dropping 1/2 point. The soft spot, dropping 1/2 point, was a soft spot, dropping 1/2 point. The soft spot, dropping 1/2 point, was a soft spot, dropping 1/2 point.

The commodity markets were steady to firm. Wheat improved on better news at Liverpool. Cotton was higher most of the day but encountered more selling toward the close.

Foreign exchanges were generally steady, sterling slightly higher as funds were drawn to New York by the high credit rates.

Garden Plans Fight Yearly At Miami

Signs for Major Bout in South for 5 Years; Netted $75,000.

Referee Gave Sharkey 6 Rounds, 1 Even; Laud Stribling.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—William F. Carey late today signed a contract with the city commissioners of Miami to hold one major prize fight here each year for a period of five years.

Carey gave the Miami commissioners the huge wooden bowl which housed last night's Stribling-Sharkey fight in Flamingo Park, Miami Beach, on the condition that the city of Miami will pay for moving the wooden structure to Miami before next winter.

The arena will be moved to this city from Miami Beach within a short time at a cost of approximately $10,000, and will be stored in sections in an outlying part of the city until fall, when it will be reerected in time to hold football games within its area.

Promoters Pocket $75,000 Out of $405,900 Gate.

While the crowd slipped away and women began dismantling the Flamingo Park arena, promoters today checked up on the results of the battle, paid off the fighters, and discussed the possibilities of making a permanent winter headquarters in the South.

The "gate" in the final box office tabulation reached $405,940 gross and $218,540 net, with the taxes deducted.

Jack Sharkey, the victor, received a check for his guaranty of $100,000 before leaving shortly after 9 o'clock for New York.

"Pa" Stribling, collecting his son's 20 per cent share of the net, received a check for $83,540.31. After deductions of other expenses, the net profit for the promoters appeared unlikely to exceed $75,000.

Sharkey in High Spirits While Doctor Treats Foe's Arm.

Sharkey, in high spirits as a big crowd gave him a send off, showed no mark of battle, but Young Stribling twice was obliged to visit his physician, Dr. B. Ferguson.

The latter treated Stribling for traumatic neuritis, which affected the Georgian's left arm and shoulder early in the fight and handicapped his flat power.

Dr. Ferguson declared Stribling emerged from the fight in good general condition, but said his left arm would require steady treatment for several days.

"The arm went bad in the second round," said Dr. Ferguson, who formerly pitched for the New York Giants. "I saw it go, just as I could detect the weakening of a pitcher's arm. He did not do much with it for the rest of the fight."

This punch that beat Stribling, in his father's opinion, was a right-hand jab in the mid-section in the first few moments of the tenth and final round.

Verdict Fair, Says Father; Referee Gave Winner 6 Rounds.

"I thought W. L. had an even chance of winning going into the tenth, but he blew himself up and I believe he was a fair verdict. W. L. did not have much left, but he fought like the great kid he is to the finish. He is not through. He is only 24, and has a wonderful future."

Lou Magnolia, New York referee, who lifted Sharkey's hand, disclosed his detailed score sheet. He gave the fourth and ninth rounds to Stribling, called the second even, and gave the remaining six rounds—third, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth—to Sharkey.

"In my judgment, it was not close," said Magnolia. "After the fourth, Sharkey piled up a clean-cut margin. It was a good fight. I was accused of

NEW CODE AT MIAMI BEACH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Special to The Washington Post.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28.—Although the prize fight between Jack Sharkey and William Stribling was an immense social and financial success, there were some things about the affair which will militate against a reproduction of the show next year. To tell the truth, the more or less permanent citizens of the community now wish that less had been said about the gambling houses and Mr. Al Capone in the dispatches dealing with the general proposition of the prize fight. They are of a peculiar mind about this, as they are great believers in gambling under refined and dainty conditions in a few c-sinos where the customers are selected with nice discrimination.

They are firmly committed to the proposition that a third call for a drink, too, but here again they believe in discretion, if not necessarily in moderation. But the gambling was carried to vulgar extremes this season, one large, popular-priced house offering roulette at 25 cents a chip and one speaker, running a display advertisement in one of the leading newspapers quite frankly recommending its line of stimulants.

So Next Year Gambling Will Be Heavier, More Exclusive.

Now, however, the solid men of the place, some of whom own property now used for gambling purposes, feel that having gotten away with it once they will not take such a risk again. So next year the gambling doubtless will be less accessible and brazen, the stakes will be higher, thus excluding the vulgar element, and the races will run under the mutual system again, by act of the legislature yet to be passed, but certain to be passed nevertheless. In fact, a large delegation of local legislators are in Miami at this time as the guests of the community, being rushed through a round of typical Miamian hospitality which is quite lavish and friendly, so that they will adopt a reasonable attitude toward the part mutual bill when it comes before them.

Mr. Dempsey and Miss Dempsey (Estelle Taylor, of the movies) were visiting here in some of the most delectable after a long separation due to the requirements of their respective professions. There have been reports in the papers that they were no longer happy together, but Mr. Dempsey said they were most happy and not in the market for a divorce at the present time.

The prize fight of Wednesday evening was no worse than it had been expected to be. In fact, it was a little better than I expected, but then I am notoriously pessimistic and I suppose there never will be a prize fight as bad as I thought this one would be.

Turner Throws Ricco Twice on Strand Mat

Joe Turner was in neat form at the Strand Theater last night. He teased Bull Ricco, of Jersey City, twice. Turner threw his opponent out of the ring just before the fight, the body of the body look in 24 minutes. Turner's second victory came as the result of a flying head toss followed by a lock and body weight combination.

Dartmouth-Stanford Elevens Play 2 Games

Stanford, University, Calif., Feb. 28 (United Press).—An agreement has been signed by Dartmouth University, of Hanover, N. H., and Stanford University for football games between the two schools in 1930 and 1931. It was announced here tonight.

The contest next year will be played here on November 29, a week after Stanford's "big game" with California, and the return game will be staged in some Eastern city, yet to be decided on, November 29.

Helen Wills Accepts Invitation to Europe

San Francisco, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Helen Wills, champion and Edith Cross, third in the national ranking of women tennis players, have accepted invitations from the United States Lawn Tennis Association to play team matches in Berlin and France. They will also play in the French championships in May and the Wimbledon all-English championships on June 24.

D. C. Hebrew Bowlers In Tie at Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 28.—It still remains a question who are the better bowlers, those of the Baltimore Hebrew Men's Association or those of the Hebrew Interclub League of Washington. After representatives of both organizations rolled four games here tonight and the scores were totaled, it was discovered that each team had 2,025 points. The match was the first of a series between the two groups.

Schmeling Outpoints Beethoven on Radio

Berlin, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—That Beethoven has been knocked out by Schmeling is the humorous observation of a commentator in the Mitteilungsblatt. Attention is called to the fact that the afternoon program of the official Berlin radio station originally provided for Beethoven selections but, today, instead, the arrival of Schmeling at the railroad station with demonstrations and speeches of welcome, was substituted.

"For decades we have heard nothing but Beethoven with his acknowledged weak knees," went the comment. "What piffle! Now, at last, comes a renaissance of our decadent musical appreciation. In the boxing arena! One thing is sure—Beethoven is knocked out."

An object of wide public acclaim, the young German heavyweight has now been elected an honorary member of the Hamburg Automobile Club.

Hayes Agrees To Griffith's Terms

Young Infliedder Mails Signed Contract From His Home.

Rice and Barnes Pay Visit; Gharrity May Try to Play.

By FRANK H. YOUNG (Staff Correspondent of The Post).

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 28.—Infliedder Jack Hayes has agreed to the salary terms of President Clark Griffith.

From his Clanton (Alabama) home, the youthful candidate for the second base job left vacant by the release of Bucky Harris, today advised Griffith that his 1929 Washington contract was on its way away with signature properly affixed.

Manager Walter Johnson had two unexpected visitors in Outfielder Ed "Red" Barnes and Sam Rice. The latter, with Mrs. Rice, motored here from San Diego, Calif., having left there last Friday.

Although Ed "Patsy" Gharrity has been signed as coach of the Washington Club, Manager Johnson vouchsafed the information tonight that the veteran catcher is likely to see active service with the Nats provided his throwing arm rounds to form.

"Eddie always was a fine catcher and a hard and timely hitter," said Johnson, "and while I have not discussed my plans with him I'm figuring that his training and work while helping me in the past have been of great value. There are still some good throws in his arm, and if this is the case, don't be surprised if I have his name shifted to the player list and use him."

With his knowledge and experience in handling pitchers and his natural ability to hit, I would just as soon take a chance on him as on the average young backstopper just coming up to the majors. Gharrity is only about 38 years old and provided he can get his arm functioning, should be good for two or three more years of big league ball."

Griffith Quit Nats in 1923, Losing 2-0 to Yankees

And President Clark Griffith, who was sitting near when Johnson made the observation, quickly seconded the motion.

While with the Nationals several years ago, Gharrity was a fine receiver, while he also was a fair substitute for Joe Judge at first base. At the end of the 1923 season his throwing arm was bothering him some, and believing that his future in baseball lay with the club was not particularly bright, he accepted an offer to play outball in Beloit.

This move cost him approximately $15,000 for the Nationals two pennants and one world's title the next two years, costing Gharrity two world series while they also figured in the money in 1926 and last year.

In addition, Gharrity lost a year's baseball pay while he was in Beloit. The veteran catcher is one of the players who would like to see the incentive he needs to make good in a comeback attempt.

Roosie Hurlers Under Wraps With More Speed Next Week.

No instructions were issued and the youngsters seemed to take it for granted that they would have to wait for their warm-ups this morning and the plunk of their pegs landing in the big mits could be heard all over Plant Field when they came out to practice.

The youngsters probably will be allowed to let out a notch in next week's game.

Maloney 10-8 Favorite Over Heeny Tonight

Boston, Mass., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Installed as a 10-to-8 favorite in the betting, Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight, today ended his training for the fight with Tom Heeny, the ten-round clash with Tom Heeny, of New Zealand, tomorrow night in the Boston Garden.

Maloney appeared in remarkable shape and was confident that he would dispose of Heeny in the first round, thereby gaining revenge for the one-round knockout the New Zealander scored on him in their first meeting.

Tom Heeny, who has been in the fight for some time, was defeated by Gene Tunney in his action against Gene Tunney, to collect 25 per cent from Tunney's earnings as heavyweight champion.

M'LARNIN 8-5 CHOICE OVER GLICK

Coast Boy Is Troubled by Weight for Bout Tonight.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (United Press).—Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver, B. C., junior welterweight, is having trouble making the weight limit of 135 pounds for his return match with Joe Glick, Brooklyn tailor, in the scheduled 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

McLarnin weighed 140 pounds after his workout Wednesday and after an extra session was down to only 139. He staged another workout today, but did not box, in an effort to get below the 135-pound mark.

After his third fight with Glick tomorrow night, McLarnin probably will confine his activities to the welterweight division. In two previous bouts McLarnin has won the decision from Glick each time.

Pop Foster, McLarnin's manager, is well satisfied with Jimmy's condition, despite his hardship in making the weight, and believes Jimmy will give Glick another decisive trouncing.

McLarnin continues to rule an 8 to 5 favorite.

Dempsey-Sharkey Bout Brings Bid of $250,000

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—After attending the Sharkey-Stribling fight in a body, the Rube C. Williamson, president of the American Legion, has authorized the chamber of commerce to guarantee $250,000 for a fight between Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey here.

The offer was unconditional to Dempsey, legionnaires said, and did not specify any date.

Boxing contests in Florida must be under the auspices of the legion, as was the Miami Beach bout.

Illinois Orders Seconds To Be Neatly Dressed

Chicago, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—It's a changing world, even when it comes to the rough and ready corner—ring seconds.

Hereafter, the Illinois State Boxing Commission has ruled, seconds will not be allowed to bound into Illinois rings with their hair disheveled, torn and soiled sweaters and vicious scowls on their faces. Instead, they must be dressed neatly, have their hair combed and make a graceful bow to the crowd before going to work.

"A good second can be a gentleman and dressed neatly and still be valuable," Chairman Paul Frenn said.

LIBRIST THREAT MADE AS MERGER GOES ON CALENDAR

Blaine Plans to Talk Traction
Program to Death if It
Survives Jam of Bills.

FARE INCREASE FEARED BY WISCONSIN SENATOR

Attack Scheduled for Radio
Measure Also May Affect Vote on Combine.

The joint resolution authorizing a merger of the local street railway companies was given a place on the Senate calendar yesterday at a meeting of the Senate steering committee.

Under the program agreed to by the committee, the bill extending the life of the Federal Radio Commission will be taken up first, the bill to enlarge the Capitol grounds will follow, and after that will come the merger resolution.

The action of the steering committee, however, does not insure action on the merger resolution. It is expected that a filibuster will be conducted against the radio bill and this may take up so much time that the merger resolution will not be reached.

Charging that his business partner, George H. Carroll, of 1828 Seventeenth street northwest, made slanderous remarks on his character, Pasquale A. Macaroni, of 644 South Carolina avenue southeast, yesterday sued for $50,000 damages in the District Court.

Last October, Macaroni charged Carroll with having the one share of stock transferred to his wife's name and entered suit asking the court to transfer it back to the corporation. The suit is still pending. Through his counsel, F. Regis Noel and Edward Pruner, Macaroni declared the alleged slander of Carroll reflected on his character, was intended to cause another man's wife to sue him for damages and to discredit him in business.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY IN BUYERS' COMPLAINTS

Purchasers in Cooperative
Venture Filed Warrants

Detective Serg. C. J. P. Weber last night took Arthur M. Suit, Ill., under orders from Inspector Harry G. Pratt, chief of detectives, to bring back to Washington Arthur M. Suit, former president and general manager of the Parkway Apartments, Connecticut avenue and McComb street northwest, who, according to word received here by police, has been arrested in Harvey on warrants charging larceny after theft.

Suit has been sought by police throughout the country after June 28, 1928, when the first of two warrants, on complaints of Mrs. M. J. Bain, 6911 Sixth street northwest, and W. J. The prisoners are expected to be returned to Washington in about three days. He will first be taken before the Police Court for a preliminary hearing to decide whether he should be bound over for action of the grand jury. Joseph C. Bruce, of the District attorney's office, said yesterday.

The finances of the cooperative apartments were investigated in January by the Gibson subcommittee of the House District Committee, after mortgage holders ordered the ejection of thirteen tenant-owners, who fought the ouster proceedings unsuccessfully. The holders of a second mortgage and Frank Russell White, architect and builder of the apartments, testified that they lost money on the building.
